

TERRIFIC BATTLE REPORTED ON WESTERN FRONT

Move by Japan Seen as Reprisal

Attempt at Truce On Russian Fight Held Significant

Senator Tells Committee Agreement Might Mean Retaliation Against the United States

Pact May Come

Some View Development as Forerunner of Pact Between Powers

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Senator Thomas (D., Utah), a member of the foreign relations committee, expressed the view today that the Soviet-Japanese agreement to suspend fighting on the Manchoukou-Outer Mongolia border might be a retaliatory move against the United States for serving notice of intention to terminate the 1911 commercial treaty with Japan.

Secretary Hull notified the Japanese government in July that the 28-year-old treaty would lapse on January 26, 1940.

While Washington awaited the full significance of the Russo-Japanese truce, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh appealed to the United States in a radio address to stay out of the European war. In one of his frequent public utterances, the famous flyer warned the nation not to be "misguided by this foreign propaganda to the effect that our frontiers lie in Europe."

"One need only glance at a map to see where our true frontiers lie," he continued. "What more could be asked than the Atlantic ocean on the east and the Pacific on the west? No, our interest in Europe need not be from the standpoint of defense, our own natural frontiers are enough for that."

Some diplomats in Moscow looked upon the Russo-Japanese armistice as the possible forerunner of a non-aggression pact between the two countries. Noting this, Senator Thomas told reporters:

"If it means an unfriendly Japan, the danger would be closer to our shores. If it is a sincere non-aggression pact, it is a peaceful move. If it is a cloak for something else it is not so good."

Thomas said a Russian-Japanese agreement would make it possible for Japan to withdraw troops from Manchoukou and "fight all the harder in China." He added that he was not surprised that the two countries were "getting together" because they "have been trying to do it for years."

Rep. Starnes (D., Ala.) commented that the truce indicated a "realignment of the world's dictatorial and totalitarian governments that would constitute the most positive threat to every truly democratic government that the world has yet seen."

Although Col. Lindbergh made no mention of the arms embargo clause of the neutrality act, which the Roosevelt administration will seek to repeal at the special session starting next Thursday, two prominent Republicans spoke out last night in support of the administration's position.

Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, made their positions known in letters to the New York Times. Stimson said he offered the only sure way for the United States to keep out of war, and Butler contended that the neutrality act represented a policy of economic nationalism which he said was "the chief cause of the world's troubles."

Suggests Commission
Meanwhile, former President Hoover suggested in New York the creation of an international commission composed of neutral nations of northern Europe to "determine where, and when, and whether these undertakings not to war on innocent men and women and children have been intentionally violated." He proposed that agents of the commission be given free movement in belligerent countries.

Discussing the Lindbergh speech, Rep. Bloom (D., N. Y.), chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, commented that Lindbergh had voiced "what every American feels—that under no circumstances must this country enter the war." He added, however, that the flyer had "left unsaid anything about the arms embargo, which helps Hitler and actually is leading to the collapse of the western civilization he speaks of."

Lindbergh Urges His Countrymen Not to Enter War

Says We Must Keep Propaganda From Pushing Our Country Into Another War

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, America's peace-time air hero, broke his habitual silence on public affairs last night to ask his countrymen not to join in Europe's war.

Speaking into a battery of microphones in his hotel room, Lindbergh declared that "we must keep foreign propaganda from pushing our country blindly into another war."

"We must not permit our sentiment, our pity, or our personal feelings of sympathy to obscure the issue, to affect our children's lives," he told his listeners. "We must be as impersonal as a surgeon with his knife."

It was the first time Lindbergh has made a radio broadcast in eight years. He spoke only slightly more than ten minutes at the behest of close friends who persuaded him the nation would be interested in his views on the European war. Time for the broadcast was contributed by the broadcasting companies.

Officials at the war department, where Col. Lindbergh has just completed a tour of active duty as a reserve officer, said they knew nothing of his intention to make the speech until it was announced by the broadcasting companies. Only a few friends were present when he spoke.

Leaning on a speaker's stand with both elbows, the lanky, sober-faced aviator asserted that America must either stay out of the war or remain permanently in Europe's affairs.

"Let us not delude ourselves," he said. "If we enter the quarrels of Europe during war, we must stay in them in time of peace as well. It is madness to send our soldiers to be killed as we did in the last war if we turn the course of peace over to the greed, the fear, and the intrigue of European nations."

"We must either keep out of European wars entirely or stay in European affairs permanently." The man who first won fame for a solo flight across the Atlantic scouted any idea that this nation's frontiers lie in Europe.

"What more could we ask than the Atlantic Ocean on the east and the Pacific on the west?" he asked. "No, our interests in Europe need not be from the standpoint of defense, our own natural frontiers are enough for that. If we extend them to the center of Europe, we might as well extend them around the earth."

"An ocean is a formidable barrier, even for modern aircraft. Our safety does not lie in fighting European wars. It lies in our own internal strength, in the character of American people and of American institutions. As long as we maintain an army, a navy, and an air force worthy of the name, as long as America does not decay within, we need fear no invasion of this country."

Warning against the effect of propaganda, Lindbergh urged that "we learn to look behind every article we read and every speech we hear."

"We must not only inquire about the writer and the speaker, about his personal interests and his nationality," he said, "but we must ask who owns and who influences the newspaper, the news picture, and the radio station. If they are fully and accurately informed, if they are not misled by propaganda, this country is not likely to enter the war now going on in Europe."

Lindbergh said that in fighting for democracy abroad, the nation might well lose it at home. "We can not count on victory merely by shipping abroad several thousand airplanes and cannon," he added. "We are likely to lose a million men, possibly several million—the best of American youth. We will be staggering under the burden of recovery during the rest of our lives. And our children will be fortunate if they see the end in their lives, even if, by some unlikely chance, we do not pass on another Polish corridor to them."

Weather Outlook
Weather outlook for the week beginning September 18: North and Middle Atlantic States: Generally fair at beginning of week, showers beginning Tuesday or Wednesday and ending about Thursday, then generally fair. Considerably cooler Monday, slightly warmer middle of week and cooler latter part of week.

Invitation 'a la Billboard'

The World's Fair "good will tour caravan" arrived in Kingston Thursday afternoon to extend a cordial invitation to everyone to come and visit the "World of Tomorrow." Included in the caravan were one of the new Studebaker cars and the Aetna Life Affiliated Companies Safety Patrol Car. The Patrol Car served as an information booth, at which information about the fair might be procured, and as a theatre, at which moving pictures of the fair were shown. The patrol car is shown as it paused at the city hall to receive the official welcome by Mayor C. J. Heiselman. The mayor is shown signing the gigantic invitation of Fiorello La Guardia, Mayor of New York city. Left to right, are A. Pardee, of Pardee's Insurance Agency; Mayor Heiselman, Jerry Zimmerman of the Fair staff, Francis Jackson of the Aetna Affiliated Life Companies, and S. A. Skillman, regional manager of the Studebaker Sales Corp.

Fashion Houses Are War's First Casualties

Paris, Sept. 16 (AP)—French fashion houses were among the war's first casualties.

Only two of the great dress-makers who set modes for most of the world are open for business today—Lanvin and Creed.

The others have closed, either because their directors were mobilized for military duty or because their clients fled to escape war.

Mainbocher, the only American among Paris couturiers, is on his way to the United States with the expressed intention of setting up shop in New York.

Before leaving he told a friend he would reopen in Paris after the war and keep his New York establishment as a branch.

His Paris employees have been paid off and his car given to Miss Anne Morgan for war work.

Will Tell About Family Behavior

Family Life Conference at First Dutch Church

Family behavior, its influence on personality, and allied subjects, the answer to which tend to show people why they are what they are, or part of the reason, at least will be among the interesting subjects brought up at a family life conference to be held at the First Dutch Church Wednesday, September 20, beginning at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Under the auspices of Miss Everette Parsons and the Home Bureau, members of that organization and of the 12 study clubs in the county and the public generally are invited to attend the meeting. At 3:30 tea will be served by members of the Henrietta Wynkoop Guild, a small charge being made.

The program will feature reports of delegates from the Study Clubs of the county to the family life conference held each year in Ithaca, at which latter gathering noted speakers are heard, and the latest conclusions and discoveries in the field of family life relationships and influences are brought forward and discussed.

The present meeting had its inception at a dinner meeting of former study club delegates held in Kingston this summer. It was held that what they had heard and learned at Ithaca ought to be passed on to more than their own restricted group.

The ladies who have arranged the program for September 20 are Mrs. Clifford Rose of Kingston, Mrs. Millard Davis of Kerhonkson, Mrs. Albert Milliken of Hurley, Mrs. Edgar Clarke of Milton, Mrs. Edward Sagerdorf

Trespass Complaint Hearing Is Denied

'Hoarding' of Food Bogs Down While Prices Have Fallen

The rush to "hoard" foods which was very marked at the outset of the European war has bogged down slightly and prices have fallen off from the peak which was reached a few days after hostilities started when householders adopted a policy "getting their share" which caused many staples to take a sharp advance because of a temporary shortage.

Sugar, which is always an item to attract one who is inclined to "hoard" foodstuffs, took a very sharp advance when local markets were swamped with buying which cleaned out local stock despite the limiting of quantities until supplies could be replenished. Despite the warning that there was plenty of sugar for all in the country, this buying spree continued several days. The sharp advance in the market

Justice Bergan Rules Max Eagle Has No Right Before Commissioners of Appraisal

Justice Francis Bergan has handed down a decision in an application made by Max C. Eagle, petitioner, for a mandamus order against the members of Delaware Section 7 Commission, a commission appointed to hear claims arising out of the taking of certain lands by the city of New York for water works purposes on the Delaware project. The commissioners are Mark W. McClay, Ross K. Osterhoudt and Michael Dobris. Justice Bergan denies the relief asked by the petitioner and holds, as did Justice Harry E. Scherick in a similar action against other respondents, that Mr. Eagle has no right under the law to compel the commissioners of appraisal to hear his claim, which is a trespass action.

Eagle contends that during 1928 while the city engaged in preliminary surveys that men in the

Intimates Bremen Was Captured By British

Moscow, Sept. 16 (AP)—The German ambassador to Soviet Russia, Count Friedrich von der Schulenburg, today intimated that the $20,000,000 German liner Bremen, mysteriously unreported since she sailed from New York August 29, had been captured by British.

He said questions concerning the German merchant ship should be referred to Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty.

"American authorities were so kind as to hold up the Bremen for 22 hours and so far as I know the British have rather fast destroyers," the German diplomat said in response to queries about reports the Bremen had reached Murmansk, Soviet Arctic port.

"I should think the joint efforts of the two powerful empires—the United States and British—should have been able to trap and take an unarmed German ship."

Extension Course To Start in City

Under Supervision of the New York University

Under the auspices of New York University an extension course in "Contemporary World Problems" will be offered to the teachers and citizens of Kingston.

This course should prove to be exceptionally interesting because of the wide scope of problems to be discussed, many of which are directly applicable to present day economic, social and political situations, said Dr. Arthur J. Laidlaw, local superintendent of schools.

In view of the chaotic conditions in Europe and Asia, citizens in our American democracy should be well informed on all issues which are so vital if this democracy is to survive. Any study that can be had whereby our people can become better informed, deserves encouragement, and I am very happy to endorse this course, Dr. Laidlaw said. "I urge all citizens and teachers who are interested to register. Classes will be held in Kingston High School, Room 9, at 4:15 p. m., and will begin on Wednesday, September 20."

Crosses Border

Hendaye, France, Sept. 16 (AP)—The French movie star Anna-bella, wife of Tyrone Power, crossed the frontier into Spain today on her way to Lisbon, where she will sail for the United States accompanied by her 11-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

New Divisions Are Sent Against Polish Army

Report on Awards Approved in Part By Justice Bergan

City Moves Confirmation on One Part of Report and Objects to Other on Certain Fees

The second separate report of Delaware Section 8, Commissioners Edward Easton, Rolf T. Michelson and Howard Beecher, has been approved in part by Justice Francis Bergan. Awards for witnesses in several cases have been left open for final determination. In some instances these amounts were of a considerable sum. The matter of allowances for witnesses in such cases have been ordered sent to Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, who will take testimony and report back to Justice Bergan as to the reasonableness of the amounts.

When confirmation of the awards was moved at special term here on September 1, before Justice Bergan a rather unusual situation developed. The city moved for confirmation in part of the report and objected to other parts, in particular the allowances made by the commission for witness fees. The city claimed these amounts were excessive. Counsel who appeared for several claimants, objected to the confirmation of the report on the grounds the awards were not sufficient and that allowances for witness fees were insufficient.

Justice Bergan said in his order of confirmation: "Ordered, that the Second Separate Report of said Commissioners of Appraisal, duly filed as aforesaid, be and it hereby is in all respects ratified, approved and confirmed as to the claims hereinafter set forth; excepting in those cases where the allowances for witnesses are held open for a later determination."

The confirmation of the awards make it possible for the property owners to receive their money for lands taken while the matter of witness allowances is being reviewed.

Awards Approved

The award of Floyd and Mabel Burch of $4,471 together with expenses and allowances for witnesses is approved in full.

The award to Chester and Tressie Hornbeck of $8,472 together with expenses and allowances for witnesses is approved in full.

In the case of Howard Brooks the award of $5,307 is confirmed together with allowances for counsel fees of $265.35. No allowance for expenses and witness fees is approved at this time.

Thomas J. Plunkett appears for claimant. A second parcel owned by Brooks receives an award of $10,498 and $524.90 counsel fees. No allowances for witness fees. The award of $20,675 to Urban T. and Myrtle Kemble together with $1,033.75 for counsel fees is confirmed. No allowance confirmed for witness fees. George F. Kaufman for claimant.

In the case of William and Maud Dierfelter, Charles W. Walton for claimant, an award of $27,650 together with $1,382 counsel fees and $1,212 for witness fees and disbursements is confirmed.

In the case of William and Maud Dierfelter, parcel 1346, Thomas J. Plunkett for claimant, and award of $400 is made together with $20 counsel fees. No allowances for expenses is confirmed.

The William Carlile claim, Charles W. Walton for claimant, in the amount of $15,760 together with $817 for witness fees and expenses of $788 for counsel fees is confirmed.

The case of Maurice and Helen D. Furman, Manuel Dittenheimer for claimant, an award of $2,363, witness fees and expenses amounting to $325 and $118.15 for counsel fees confirmed.

In all of the cases moved for confirmation Henry R. Bright and Vincent G. Connelly appeared for the city of New York.

Polish Defenders of Warsaw and Lwow Reported to Have Pushed Back the Besiegers

Submarine War

German Submarine Warfare Against Merchant Vessels Adds 2 Victims

(By The Associated Press)
Hundred of thousands of French and German troops were reported today engaged in a terrific battle along a 40-mile western front after two weeks of skirmishes.

French said German infantry went "over the top" in waves under cover of a heavy artillery bombardment in the lower Nied river valley but declared the Germans were repulsed after hours of fighting. French also reported driving deeper into Germany in the Moselle valley area.

The morning communique in Berlin said there had been "enemy artillery activity" at Saarbrücken and that "local enemy thrusts were ward off with heavy losses for the enemy."

In the east Germany sent new divisions against the Polish army encircled west of Warsaw. The German forces were said to be steadily closing in on the Poles, who were holding out in an area less than 50 miles in diameter.

The German communique said German forces "swept shattered units of the Polish southern army" before them and added that "fights are still continuing at the gates of Lwow." Germans also were said to be continuing their attack on the Brest-Litovsk citadel, 100 miles east of Warsaw.

In Budapest Hungarian diplomatic and press circles received reports that Polish defenders of Warsaw and Lwow had pushed back the besiegers, inflicting severe losses.

Other foreign sources also reported Polish gains, but there was no confirmation of the dispatches. French reports said heavy German attacks were repulsed at Vola, a Warsaw suburb, with the loss of some artillery and equipment.

War at Sea

Two more British vessels—the cargo boat Fanad and the trawler Davara—were sunk, bringing total British losses to 20. The motorship Alex Van Opstal was sunk, either by mine or torpedo, and the British blamed the sinking on "enemy action."

The British navy pressed its campaign against undersea craft. British naval experts said that the war at sea had been heavily in Britain's favor thus far because "a number" of German submarines had been sunk and German shipping virtually had been driven from the sea.

War in the Air

Germans were reported in Paris to have introduced low-flying aerial attack in operations on the western front, only to be beaten off by French pursuit planes. French said the German losses were "heavy."

Non-Military Developments

An armistice between Japan and Soviet Russia in their Far Eastern fighting was seen by diplomats in Moscow as possibly foreshadowing a nonaggression pact between those traditional enemies.

The armistice culminated negotiations started shortly after Russia signed a nonaggression pact with Germany on August 24.

Senator Thomas (D-Utah), a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he regarded the Japanese-Soviet agreement as a possible retaliatory move against the United States for serving notice of intention to terminate the 1911 commercial treaty with Japan.

In India Mohandas K. Gandhi asked the British government for "honest action to implement the declarations of faith in democracy made on the eve of the war," and appealed for the recognition of India as a free and independent nation.

Submarine Warfare

The German submarine warfare against allied merchant vessels counted two new victims today while British asserted "a number" of U-boats have been destroyed. A neutral ship also was lost.

Latest victims of Germany's attempt to lay a counter blockade around the British Isles were the British fishing trawler Davara, the Irish freighter Fanad Head, and a Belgian steamer.

The trawler was sunk in the Irish Sea off the English coast. Its crew of 12 was rescued by the steamer Willerpool. London reported the 5,200-ton Fanad Head, carrying a crew of 40 and a few passengers, had been sunk on the Service League of Church Resumes Regular Meetings

The Service League of the First Presbyterian Church resumed its monthly meetings following the summer vacation period Tuesday afternoon, September 12, in the Ramsey Memorial Building.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. W. J. McVey. During the business meeting plans for future activities were discussed, including a rummage sale to be held the last week of September, and the sale of flavoring extracts by the league.

Announcement was made of the coaching conference of the North River Presbyterial to be held in the Highland Presbyterian Church on September 28, and of the fall meeting of the North River Presbyterial which will be in Poughkeepsie September 26.

Letters from Presbyterian missionaries in Brazil and China were read. Mrs. Lewis Shaw and Mrs. Fromer Woodard were appointed to take charge of the rummage sale, and Mrs. McVey will take orders for the extracts.

The members enjoyed hearing the Rev. W. J. McVey talk on the vacation trip to Maine, which he and his family had taken. Before closing, the Rev. Mr. McVey expressed his desire that the Service League have a most successful year and admonished its members, as a means of attaining that success to "think thoroughly, pray earnestly, plan wisely, and work together."

French Report Repulsing Nazis 'Going Over the Top'

READY TO SERVE FRANCE AGAIN

Wearing her Red Cross uniform of World War days, 72-year-old Mrs. Jane Cluzel (above), of Boston announced she would take the Dixie Clipper to Lisbon and seek service once more in a like capacity.

By JOHN MARTIN
Paris, Sept. 16 (AP)—German infantry was reported today to have gone "over the top" toward French lines in the lower Nied river valley under cover of a heavy artillery bombardment.

The French general staff said the attack was "sharply repulsed."

The Germans apparently used the World War technique of sending their infantry in "waves" against French rifle and machine-gun fire.

After hours of fighting, the French command reported, the German charge was broken and the attackers were forced to retire to their original positions.

The morning war communiqué said:

"There was an excited night in many parts of the front."

"There was very strong enemy resistance in the region south of Saarbrücken. Some progress has been realized by our troops east of the Moselle river."

"A strong enemy counter-attack with artillery preparation has been repulsed in the region neighboring the lower valley of the Nied river."

Military observers paid tribute to the morale of the French troops operating from entrenched positions in the face of German infantry crossing the shell-pocked area, a new salient on the western front.

They said the troops held their positions against the charge and against blasting fire from German mortars and long-range guns.

Northeast of Sierck, in German territory, the French were reported to have captured a small woods which had been under German fire during a five-day battle that began September 10.

They were said to be holding consolidated positions gained after a temporary withdrawal and a later recovery of the disputed terrain.

French forces were reported today to have driven beyond the tiny German border village of Perl in an attempt to turn the flank of Germany's army in the Moselle valley near the Luxembourg frontier.

Dispatches said the Germans were giving ground slowly, fighting from every hilltop and woods, after having blown up the main railroad line between the French city of Metz and the German city of Trier. The railway parallels the border of neutral Luxembourg.

Perl, a typical old world village, a mile and a half within Germany, was the starting point of a German counter-offensive up the Moselle valley last Sunday in which the French were forced to give up some 300 yards of German territory.

A general staff communiqué this morning mentioned a new salient bordering the lower Nied river valley south of Merzig where the Nied joins the Saar river.

Previous communiqués had said the French were driving from Sierck toward Trier in the north and from the general direction of Sarreguemines toward Saarbrücken in the south. The new salient is between this area.

The communiqué reported "some progress" east of the Moselle river, apparently indicating French troops had advanced toward Trier after five days of fighting to push the German line back.

It acknowledged that the Germans had attacked in the Nied valley sector after pounding French positions with heavy guns but said the attack had been repulsed.

The communiqué said German artillery action against the French front lines south of Saarbrücken had caused an "excited night" on the western front.

Here's How a U-Boat Gets Its Ship...

1. Lookout sights ship.

2. Submarine dives.

4. Studies prey.

5. Well-aimed torpedo ends the chase.

By The AP Feature Service
That snake in the waves, the submarine, is a tough craft to cope with. It exposes so little of itself when it's on the surface that it can locate its prey and submerge before the surface craft knows it's anywhere near. But when it's below, there's plenty of maneuvering to be done. The officers train their quarry by means of periscope and listening devices; calculate its speed and probable course. Since the torpedo is fired from within a sub, the whole boat has to be swung about to draw bead on the target. Therefore, if the sub can be pointed at the broad side, it's chances of making a hit are best. With merchant ships, U-boats are supposed to give passengers and crew a chance to get clear. That's dangerous—perhaps the merchantman carries a concealed gun, and subs are highly vulnerable to surface attack. If the quarry is a warship above destroyer size, it takes two or three torpedoes to inflict appreciable damage.

And How a Ship Sinks a Submarine

1. Detector ray locates submarine.

2. A depth charge is tossed overboard.

3. Concussion cripples the sub.

It takes a lot of equipment to sink a submarine. Mines, strung at several depths, can get them at the mouth of a harbor, but at sea it's tricky business. The British have made strides in submarine detection devices since the World War—soundings rays and other electrical developments. But it's still difficult to spot U-boats—and harder yet to sink 'em. Depth bombs have been the most effective—"ashears" full of TNT, rolled off the rear of a sub-chaser or fired by a special "Y" gun. The trick here is to sink the ashears close on the sub and to get your own ship out of that neighborhood fast. The heavy charge is exploded under water with the hope that the concussion will spring the seams of the U-boat. If the sub-chaser doesn't get away, the concussion might damage it, too. Small guns are effective against submarines, too, if the sub can be caught on the surface.

Armistice Today In Far Eastern Fighting

By WITT HANCOCK

Moscow, Sept. 16 (AP)—An armistice today in far eastern fighting between Soviet Russia and Japan was stipulated in an agreement which diplomatic quarters saw as foreshadowing a possible non-aggression pact between those traditional enemies.

The official Soviet news agency, Tass, said the armistice, announced last night, would go into effect at 2 p. m. (6 a. m. EST.) today.

Military forces of the two powers, who have been fighting intermittently for four months on the frontier of sovietized outer Mongolia and Japanese-dominated Manchoukuo, would maintain positions which they held at 1 p. m. yesterday.

The armistice culminated negotiations started not long after Soviet Russia on August 24 signed a nonaggression pact with Germany, Japan's partner in the anti-communist agreement. The discussions of long-troubled Soviet-Japanese relations were carried out by Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and Japanese Ambassador Shigenori Togo.

The most recent hostilities on the Manchoukuo frontier started May 11, and at times reached great intensity as aerial and mechanized forces were brought into play. The outbreak was only one, however, of a series of difficulties the two nations have had along 1,000 miles of their mutual twisting frontier in the far east.

The Tass announcement said a commission of two Soviet-Mongolian and two Japanese-Manchoukuan representatives would be organized "at the earliest possible date" to determine the boundary.

Within a few hours after announcement of the armistice, Russia named a new ambassador to Japan, Constantin Smetanin, who had served as charge d'affaires in Tokyo since June 5, 1938, when former Ambassador Mikhail Mikhalovich Slavutsky returned to Moscow.

(A Japanese communiqué announcing the armistice said prisoners and dead of the four-month conflict would be exchanged while arrangements are completed to establish the exact Manchoukuo-Mongolia boundary. The army section of the Japanese imperial headquarters declared both sides had suffered "considerable damage" during the outbreak of bitter fighting between August 20 and September 1. No details were made known, however.)

Moscow observers said a rumored Soviet-Japanese non-aggression pact would be a blow to the British position in east Asia and possibly to far eastern interests of the United States.

It would have an even greater effect on the Japanese campaign in China. Russia has given more or less open material aid to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in his fight against Japan.

Intense Fighting Reported In the Polish War Zone

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

Berlin, Sept. 16 (AP)—Kutno, Warsaw and Brest-Litovsk (Brzesk Nad Bugiem) were centers of intense fighting in the Polish war zone today as reports of continued German progress shared interest with vague hints of a new peace effort, possibly emanating from Rome.

German communiques said Warsaw was encircled but it appeared that the Nazi forces had postponed losing a knockout blow against the Polish capital until they had disposed of stubborn Polish opposition at Kutno, 70 miles to the west.

There, in an area approximately 50 miles in diameter, a hard-pressed Polish army was making a desperate, last ditch stand against encircling German forces.

It appeared impossible to German observers that the Kutno garrison could hold out much longer. With each succeeding communiqué the circle occupied by the Polish forces has been shrinking on the war maps.

German military experts said the full force which the army could apply to Kutno had not been exerted, but the Polish forces—which have been making occasional attempts to break out—no longer are in a position to cause much trouble.

Germany's air force and swift motorized detachments, therefore, were concentrating on pushing their drive far to the southeast.

Once the Polish troops at Kutno are out of the way, there will remain no opposition between Brest-Litovsk and Warsaw except the snipers who still are giving the Germans trouble in hundreds of towns and villages.

At Brest-Litovsk, 100 miles east of Warsaw, where Germany imposed a World War peace on Russia which was later swept aside by the Versailles Treaty, a swiftly-moving East Prussian army was pressing down from the north.

Brest-Litovsk is defended by a line of permanent fortifications and the Germans face a fierce battle for its possession. Dispatches from the front today, however, said the East Prussian army had taken some of the outer defenses.

Outside of these operations, the Polish campaign appeared to be developing into a chase to the southeast, where the Russian and Rumanian borders come together.

German forces were reported close to Lwow, capital of the Polish Ukraine. Speedy advance units, which strike swiftly and fall back when the need arises, were said to be nearing Stanislawow, 70 miles southeast of Lwow.

News and military dispatches reaching Berlin described the flight of Polish officials, diplomats, refugees and even some soldiers over the Rumanian border, increasing the problem facing the Rumanian government.

Rumania, which a few days ago advised Berlin it was observing the strictest neutrality, was said to be troubled by the flood of refugees fleeing before the German advance and to have required those seeking asylum to refrain from political or military activity.

Official Germany meanwhile remained almost completely silent about the war in the west. The average German knew there was bitter fighting in Poland and was aware of the British blockade in the North Sea, but was relatively uninterested on other phases of the war.

Towers of Glass

The prophecy that tall towers of glass would be built to glorify modern civilization, made centuries ago by visionaries, seems about to become a reality. Glass technicians recently announced the development of a structural material called glastone which is made by integrating colorful flat glass with lightweight concrete, forming a masonry unit for load-bearing walls which can be utilized to any desired height.

Joseph Byer Is Alleged Bankrupt

New York, Sept. 15 (Special).—

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court here today against Joseph Byer, 259 Fair street, Kingston, who is in the business of buying and selling cigars, tobacco and confectionery.

The petitioning creditors are Mary L. Elmdorf, 260 Clinton avenue, Kingston, with a claim for $1,630; G. W. Van Slyke and Horton, Inc., 25 Dederick street, Kingston, $566; and Valentin Burgevin, Inc., Fair and Main streets, Kingston, $450.

Mr. Byer is charged with having committed an act of bankruptcy by conveying, while insolvent, his land and building at 259 Fair street, to Conrad Robinson.

Two More British Vessels And Belgian Steamer Sunk

First Casualty

With typical British humor, the English called Gunner E. Donovan Gibson (above) their first war casualty. But to Gunner Gibson it was no joke, because a tractor ran over his foot as his regiment of the Royal Artillery scurried to mobilize only a few hours after Prime Minister Chamberlain pronounced the declaration of war.

London, Sept. 16 (AP)—German submarines continued to levy tolls on British shipping today as the royal navy pressed its campaign against undersea craft and the government stepped up preparations for a protracted war.

News came during the night that two more British vessels and a neutral Belgian steamer had been sunk.

These reports followed by a few hours a government announcement that "a number of U-boats" had been destroyed by war vessels and planes.

The two British vessels sunk were the 5,200-ton cargo boat Fanad Head and the 291-ton trawler Davara. They brought to 20 the total number of British ships sunk since the war started two weeks ago.

British naval experts said these losses were no greater than expected in view of the large number of unprotected British vessels on the seas when war was declared.

On the whole, they said, naval activity so far has been heavily in Britain's favor. The following reasons were cited:

1—Britain's drive against submarines has been much more effective than during the first two weeks of the World War, when only one U-boat was sunk.

2—Britain already has driven virtually all German shipping off the seas and during the first week of the war seized more than 76,000 tons of contraband cargo bound for Germany on neutral vessels.

These experts said losses of British vessels would diminish rapidly after the convoy system came fully into operation and that German submarines should not be a serious threat to British shipping.

There was no loss of life on the two British vessels sunk last night. The Belgian vessel was identified in an authorized account of the sinking as the motorship Alex Van Opstal of Antwerp, listed in Lloyd's Register as a craft of 5,965 tons. It was believed no lives were lost.

A Greek steamer picked up 49 survivors and landed them on the south coast of England. Six were taken to a hospital suffering from fractures and shock.

The British Press Association said it understood the ship was attacked by a German submarine. Crew members, however, said the steamer was "struck by something and an explosion followed."

The British press gave prominence to the announcement that "a number of U-boats" had been destroyed by the navy, but commented editorially the government still was too grudging in giving out news of its operations.

"This is the first time that the authorities have alluded publicly to the success of operations against the submarine menace," the Daily Sketch said. "Even now the claim is modest enough, but reading between the lines we can see that already within a fortnight from the beginning of the war the U-boat as a weapon has been paralyzed."

The Daily Mail said, "The Admiralty at last admits what Fleet Street has known for some time. A number of German U-boats have been destroyed. Even now the announcement is grudging in character. We are not told how many."

It was disclosed, in line with Britain's war time policy of denying merchant ships to search for contraband cargo, that 70 vessels were being held under guard off the southeast coast.

Wealth in Ships Lies on Erie Bed

Items in Sunken Cargoes Range From Cash to Locomotives.

LORAIN, OHIO.—Rich treasures—not gold doubloons but everything from cash to whisky and locomotives—lie on the bottom of Lake Erie, a survey of records here shows.

The wrecks of ships lie scattered over the bottom of the shallowest of the Great Lakes—whose average depth is less than 100 feet—but are neglected by treasure hunters who go instead to tropical islands to search for legendary pirates' gold.

Valuable cargoes have gone down on the ships that travel the inland seas.

One of the better-known lake tragedies was that of the ship Erie, commanded by Capt. T. J. Titus. Sailing from Buffalo for Chicago on the afternoon of August 9, 1841, an explosion rocked her decks as she was about 33 miles out.

Panic Followed Fire.

Flames spread throughout the rigging on the old sailing ship. There was a panic and most aboard were drowned or burned to death. Scores of immigrants aboard died, and their life savings—amounting to approximately $18,000—sank with the charred ship in 70 feet of water.

No one thought of the fortune until 1855, when an enterprising group from Buffalo found the hull of the ship, towed it to shallow water and recovered the wealth, which was mostly in foreign coins. Not all of the treasures have been recovered.

The bulk of the Dean Richmond still lies between Dunkirk, N. Y., and Erie, Pa. All hands were lost when the Richmond sank, and $30,000 worth of pig zinc lies in her water-logged hold.

The Young Ship sank during the last century with a valuable cargo of railroad iron, near Walnut creek. On Point Pelée, Ont., lies the Fent with a money cargo, and somewhere between Cleveland and Detroit the Clarion is sunk with a cargo of locomotives.

Finders of the steamer Atlantic, which went down off Long Point in Lake Erie with a loss of 300 lives, were made richer by $30,000.

Much Whisky Lost.

Not a little of the valuable cargo on the rocky bottom of treacherous Lake Erie is whisky, some lost in wrecks but much thrown overboard from rumrunning smugglers' boats.

During the days of prohibition the bootleggers—many of them boys in their teens out for adventure and profit—piled the lake with their bottled cargoes.

One of the most popular routes was by way of the Lake Erie islands—past Put-In-Bay, where Admiral Perry harbored his fleet before his famous encounter with the British.

In the shallows near the islands the rumrunners hastily dumped their liquor whenever the vigilant coast guard appeared. Many cases of whisky still rest on the sandy bottoms.

Edward A. Nagel, a young Toledo yachtsman, last summer anchored his catboat off one of the islands, descended in an open-bottom diving helmet, and recovered many cases of liquor.

Boy in Swimming Hole Killed by Falling Plane

GREENSBURG, PA.—One boy was killed and another injured in a swimming hole seven miles southwest of Greensburg when an airplane occupied by two men crashed into the hole when the controls failed.

Peter Kodalyk, 13 years old, of Greensburg, was crushed to death by the plane. Joseph Wyetys, 15, of Armbrust, suffered a concussion. Pilot David Patterson, of Greensburg, climbed uninjured from the wreckage. Nicholas Plevia, of Monongahela River Lock No. 4, a student pilot, received only a bruised knee.

Caveman Lives Decade In Underground Burrow

MODESTO, CALIF.—Hans Hansen, 77, has been ejected by police from the underground burrow he has called home for the last 10 years.

Officers said Hansen had dug out from under the floor of a warehouse a space big enough to hold his body and store a few groceries. There he had lived since 1929, eating, sleeping, reading and even cooking.

His inadvertent rap on the floor of the warehouse led to discovery by employees of Hansen's mole-like existence.

GERMAN TROOPS TAKE OVER GDYNIA

German troops, shown outside Gdynia in this radio-photo transmitted from Berlin to New York, are firing on the Polish city, which fell before its attackers. Poland thus lost its only seaport. The Baltic, however, already had been blockaded by the German fleet.

MISSING CHILDREN

The Great American mobilization has been under way this month. It involves millions of people. None of them wear gas masks or carry weapons, and nearly all of them look happy.

In case you haven't noticed, we refer to the opening of school.

In the European countries with which we are most familiar, the children are not tripping off happily to school with an apple or a flower for teacher. They are mostly scattered out through the country and the small towns, separated from their parents, probably lonely and homesick, and not getting much education—getting only a bitter and confusing experience.

Thus war comes to tens of millions of homes, interfering with normal, happy life. And perhaps it is true that, as Frederick T. Birchall has written for the New York Times, regarding the flight of 600,000 children from London:

"From millions of homes curses rise against the war's creator. This parting of families is the same not only in London, but in Paris and the other cities of France, in war-swept Poland and even in Germany itself. In all these, Rachel is weeping for her children and her bitter mother-wrath blames one man for her desolation."

WAR DURATION

How long this European war will last is a question of interest to every country in the world. While it lasts, and for some time afterward if it is prolonged, the war will affect in varying degrees every nation and almost every person in the world. For the world's life in this age hangs together by a thousand threads.

It may be, and probably will be, a long war. The British government is assuming it will last for at least three years. That would be almost as long as the last war, and might seem longer, for it seems likely to be more ruthless and exhausting.

What will be the fortunes of ourselves and the world in general, during the struggle and while the resulting ruins are being mopped up? Perhaps it is better that we do not know. We hoped for a better world last time, but we got little more than a continuation of evil forces not yet exhausted. Few of us now have the hardihood to prophesy.

All we can do is to use the best judgment we have, trying to keep our country out of the war, trying to see the issues clearly, trying not to be quixotic, but hoping to help build eventually a better world.

IMPRACTICAL PSYCHOLOGY

Dr. Gordon Allport of Harvard University, retiring president of the American Psychological Association, gave his fellow authorities what might be considered a bawling out the other day at a meeting in Berkeley, Cal. He told them they were less competent than head-waiters to forecast human behavior.

Psychologists, he said, had withdrawn so far into their laboratories and had worked so hard on problems that have little relation to pressing human difficulties that they had lost their practical touch with people.

The head-waiter's great knowledge of human behavior is based on long and often painful experience dealing with individuals and small groups. He knows how people are likely to act under certain conditions, but he can hardly know why. The psychologist of whom Dr. Allport complains knows why but not how. A nice combination of the two types of understanding is what should be sought.

SEEKING KNOWLEDGE

The people of this country are keen on self-improvement. With the opening of public schools and colleges for a new term, there is revealed a tremendous demand for education and training along many different lines.

In an Ohio college, which offers study opportunities not necessarily leading to an academic degree, courses are to be given in budgetary control and investment surveys, personnel management and labor problems. These subjects are presented in direct response to many requests from men and women who will do part-time study in addition to their regular jobs.

Night courses in gardening are popular in some public schools. These, too, are offered in answer to a large demand from men and women interested in improving their yards and getting the most satisfaction out of their gardening hobby.

Even more interesting is the experience of a college which yearly conducts an intensive, five-day course on "how-to-study." The lectures are free and those who attend are not required to enroll in regular classes, although many of them do so. This year more than 1,000 persons thronged the college auditorium on the opening night of the course.

There is no end to the examples which could be given, no doubt, in any part of the country. The American people have gone after education and enlightenment with immense zeal.

Some states are going to celebrate two Thanksgiving Days. If we Americans estimated our blessings correctly, we'd celebrate 'em half a dozen times.

Censorship and propaganda seem to be committing suicide.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CASES OF ACNE

I frequently write about acne—pimples—because I know that there is always a fresh group of teen age boys and girls who are afflicted with this distressing and embarrassing condition just when their appearance means so much to them.

Because acne causes so much mental anguish and so can affect health and happiness, physicians today are giving more attention to acne instead of simply telling the boy and girl that it will pass away in a few years.

Dr. L. P. Ereaux, Montreal, whom I have quoted before, states in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, that the general practitioner should shoulder his responsibility in correcting this disfiguring disorder. Physical imperfections should be corrected, hygienic habits established, and the local skin condition then treated.

The fact that nearly all cases of acne occur near or at the period of puberty (12 to 14 in girls and 14 to 16 in boys) shows that the sex and other glands have something to do with causing it.

Dr. Ereaux records that in their clinic observations were made on a group of acne patients who were unselected, not on any special diet and who were receiving no treatment of any kind. A combination of pituitary and sex gland extracts was used and immediate improvement was noted—clearing of the skin up to a certain point. But after the condition had improved up to a certain point, no further improvement could be obtained although the same regular doses of the combined extract were continued. However, when this remedy was withdrawn the acne returned in most cases and was about as bad as ever.

The above shows that while these gland extracts helped the condition, something else was needed to bring about a complete cure. In the opinion of most skin specialists food is an important factor in causing or helping to cure acne. Dr. Whitfield, after whom Whitfield's ointment, so helpful in fungous skin affections is named, advises that the fat element found in whole dairy products (milk, butter) and in goose and duck should be avoided by acne patients. Sir Malcolm Morris advises that mustard, pepper, pickles, spices, catsups, sauces, curry and coffee be avoided if a clear skin is desired.

Health Booklets

Ten health booklets by Dr. Barton are now available. They may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired to The Bull Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. The booklets are: (No. 101) Eating Your Way to Health; (No. 102) Why Worry About Your Heart?; (No. 103) Neurosis; (No. 104) The Common Cold; (No. 105) Overweight and Underweight; (No. 106) Food Allergy or Sensitivity; (No. 107) Scourge—gonorrhea and syphilis; (No. 108) How Is Your Blood Pressure?; (No. 109) Chronic Rheumatism and Arthritis; (No. 110) Cancer: Its Symptoms and Treatment.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Sept. 16, 1919.—Mrs. Peter Gumaer died at her home on Abel street.

Mrs. Florence Mae Burt and Dore Steadman Applegate married in Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. Benjamin Wesley Grant died at his home in Kiskatom.

J. Frederick Schwarman died in Weehawken. Frank Hasselman and Mrs. Delia Bigelow married.

Sept. 6, 1920.—Dr. Charles O'Reilly opened dental office in the Broadway Theatre building. Mrs. Colba Reed died at her home on Fair street.

Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Behrens, widow of Dr. Henry Behrens, widely known dentist, died at her home on Washington avenue.

The Hercules Powder Company team won the Industrial Baseball League championship.

Several cases of typhoid fever reported at Blue Mountain.

Miss Myrtle Krom and James Duffy married. Miss Gertrude Rathgeber of Albany avenue and Charles Steinmiller of this city married in the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer.

Mrs. John J. Osterhout died at her home in Roseland.

Death of Egbert Smith of Olive Bridge.

Tulsa, Okla. (AP)—Virtually an arsenal on wheels, an armored car belonging to Joseph T. Miller, police equipment salesman, was stolen recently from its parking spot on a Tulsa, Oklahoma, street. It was missing two days before officers found it parked not far from the home of the superintendent of the police identification bureau. The thieves did not molest a sub-machine gun, bullet proof vest, tear gas guns and 1,000 rounds of ammunition with which the car was equipped.

Bastrop, Tex. (AP)—Premier feature of the Bastrop County Livestock show this fall will be 278-mile pony express ride and horse endurance contest.

Riders will carry a letter for delivery when they return from a trip it is estimated will take the best horses at least five days.

The route is from Bastrop to Austin and San Antonio, and livestock officials hope the winner will reach Bastrop on his return the opening day of the show.

Oklahoma City (AP)—Biggest splash in Oklahoma City's history was caused, recently, by a peanut. A spectator offered Leona, a zoo elephant, a peanut. She reached and reached for it with her trunk, stretching it far across the moat that separated her and the goober.

Father and father and farther she stretched. The chain fastened around her leg didn't have so much rubber in it. Suddenly it snapped. Leona plunged into three feet of water. Spectators were drenched. Leona belched and declined to try an ascent up the slippery moat.

Finally, Keeper Leo Blondin drained the moat, built a heavy stairway for Leona to climb out,

SHOKAN

Shokan, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Robert B. Beck is returning to New York today after having been at her place on the mountain since early last summer. Mrs. Beck plans to come to Shokan again in October.

Otto Grossman, west-end boarding house proprietor, made a trip to New York during the early part of the week.

Mrs. Mary Thomann, who sustained severe head injuries in a fall down stairs last week, is recovering from the effects of her accident. Mrs. Thomann, a visitor for the past several weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Richter, became dizzy when about to descend the attic stairs and plunged headlong down the steps.

Aarlsen Van Wageningen of Kingston has been spending a few days at the Harry P. Van Wageningen summer home along the north boulevard.

The occasional hard showers appear to have brought no great change in the local water supply. Many wells continue low or dry, while the springs, which failed last summer, have failed to start up again.

Elder Arnold Bellows of West Hurley officiated at the funeral services for the late Mrs. Alice Beesmer of Saugerties in the Olive and Hurley meeting house Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Beesmer, who before her marriage to the late Jacob Beesmer was Alice Emery, had a number of friends and relatives in the reservoir section.

Homer Markle, Jr., is doing some interior decorating at the Fred Adsit residence in the village.

Louis Thiel's cocker spaniel was hit and fatally injured by a passing car Monday. Mr. Thiel, having become greatly attached to the animal, is feeling pretty blue over the loss of his canine friend.

Sunday, September 15, 1907, an anti-saloon sermon was preached in the Shokan Reformed Church by Henry Smith. The occasion was also a joint meeting of the Reformed and Methodist congregations of the old village. These "temperance meetings" of frequent occurrence in Olive, were prompted by the periodical attempts of "wet" advocates to regain liquor licenses in the town by local option polls.

Olive was consistently dry for many years, though surrounded by cases in Hurley, Shandaken and other adjacent towns.

An exterior painting job is in progress at the Henry Goblein residence in the village center. The woodwork is being done in white, while an attractive shade of red has been applied to the metal roofing. Lawrence Spencer is doing the work for Mr. Goblein.

Mr. and Mrs. George Weeks of Stone Ridge called on relatives in Shokan Tuesday.

The Townsend Club of Kingston is advertising a public meeting for this evening in Winchell's Hall. Good speakers have been secured for the meeting and there will be singing by the Kingston Glee Club.

Miss Joan Wendt of Elmhurst is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Amalie Wendt, who plans to remain at her state road place through September.

John J. Every of Saugerties was numbered among the out-of-town business men seen on our streets Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Schoensiegel, boarders in the village, have returned to their home in the city.

Harry Wright, member of the local reservoir force, is one of the guards who have been stationed down at the reservoir headworks, in connection with the recent order excluding fishermen from the east and west basins.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Gearon, summer residents, returned to their home in New York Wednesday. The Gearons were accompanied by Miss Helen Gilmore, who spent several weeks at the Windrum place on the state road. Mrs. May Gross of New York is at the Allen homestead for two weeks. Mrs. Gross is the former May Allen.

NORTH MARBLETOWN

North Marbletown, Sept. 15.—The people of this community tendered a farewell picnic to Crosswell B. Sheedy, teacher of the North Marbletown School, who accepted the position of superintendent of the newly opened Hurley School.

Mrs. Jennie A. Markle returned from Saratoga Springs, where she had spent several weeks on her vacation with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest DuBois spent a vacation in Massachusetts and returned recently to their home.

School reopened with a new teacher in charge, and several new pupils. The new teacher is Virgil Sheeley of Cortkill.

Those entering their end term of the sophomore class at the Kingston High School are V. Herbert Sachar and John Kowal.

Regina Krom was transferred from the M. J. M. to Kingston High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Markle held a clambake recently for several friends.

Mrs. Nettie DuBois spent several days at Saratoga Springs.

Mr. Krom is taking over the job of Joseph Miller, school janitor, who removed to Brooklyn.

A truck load of children and adults motored to Accord to spend an evening of enjoyment at the roller skating rink recently. Mrs. Markle was the chaperone.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, Sept. 16.—Services in the Methodist Church for Sunday are: Sunday school, 10 a. m. Morning worship, 11 o'clock, and evening service, 7:30 o'clock; the Rev. F. Potter, pastor.

A food and sale and silver tea will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Becker Wednesday, September 20, under the auspices of the public Ladies' Auxiliary. The public is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Morsehead and daughter, of Atlantic City, N. J., spent a few days last week with Mrs. Margaret Hyatt and Mrs. Charlotte Morsehead. They also enjoyed Sunday at the "Vista," Haines Falls, with Mrs. E. B. Haines.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walters and sons, Donald and Robert, of Flushing, L. I., spent the week-end at the Clair homestead.

Mrs. Stokes and baby of Sloightsburgh visited at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Chambers Wednesday.

Charles Wesley met with an accident Tuesday, cutting his arm with glass, having three stitches closing the wound by Dr. Ross.

The Ladies of the Methodist Church are preparing for a rummage sale next month and donations will be appreciated and received by any of the members.

Arthur Maurer, Jr., is visiting with his grandmother, Mrs. Julia Mains, at her home.

Since the pleasing mealiness of a baked potato is gradually lost as it cools or steams, the cook needs to do some pretty close timing to get the potatoes done just as dinner is ready. A good way to prevent soginess, is to, cut a cross on one side of the baked potato after removing it from the oven and then to pick it up (in a cloth) and squeeze it gently until it bulges up into the cross-cut slash.

Strong Assertion of the Rights of Neutrals May Be Expected From the United States

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 16.—The trend here now is to get back to international law. The controversy over amending the neutrality law has reached the point where one side says it was unneutral to put on the embargo in the first place, and the other side says it is unneutral to make any change now.

President Roosevelt never did favor the present law, even though he signed it as a compromise measure and to avoid further bickering about international affairs at the time. The department of state has stood steadfastly for the principle that the President of the United States under the constitution should retain discretionary power to conduct the foreign relations of the government.

In 1937, Senator Borah himself was among those who supported an amendment to give the President discretionary power to decide whether or not to apply the cash and carry proposal when it was offered in the Senate in 1937.

Mr. Roosevelt, on signing the present neutrality law, which was first adopted in August, 1933, in the closing days of a session when adequate debate was curtailed because of the threats of a filibuster, said in a public statement that the wholly inflexible arms embargo provisions "might have exactly the opposite effect from that which was intended. In other words, the inflexible provisions might drag us into war instead of keeping us out."

The President, therefore, though accepting the patchwork legislation because he could not help matters then, pointed out how dangerous it would be to apply the statute in critical situations. Subsequent legislative debate turned on the idea that America would be kept out of war if more and more restrictive law were adopted. This view has been persistently opposed by Secretary Hull. Many Republican authorities on internal questions have taken the position that the department of state is right about it and has been all along.

The impetus for the present neutrality legislation arose out of the investigation by the Senate munitions committee, at whose hearings in 1934 it was sought to prove that President Wilson yielded to the importunities of the war profiteers and led the American nation to war to save Wall Street's investments. This sort of argument up to that time came only from the Socialists, who have been trying to smear every administration as "super-capitalist," but, when United States Senators, though in the minority, adopted that view, a public sentiment was created which those who knew the facts about America's entry into the war did not take the time or trouble to refute, even though it was an absurdity to them.

Today the results of letting the erroneous impressions spread by the Senate munitions committee stand without protest are apparent in the propaganda widely circulated that money alone brings on wars. The possibility that the ambition of dictators and their cruel tactics in threatening or using force may have had something to do with the start of wars was not admitted to be in any sense controlling. Now that a European war has been begun as a consequence of a plain act of aggression by Hitler and a refusal to negotiate peace except on a basis of complete surrender, the world knows that the causes assigned by the Senate munitions committee have been proved wrong, and that wars come for reasons other than the protection of munitions makers or investors.

Mr. Roosevelt, in discussing current neutrality issues with the press this week, advised that the newspaper correspondents read international law cases for the last 100 years as compiled by John Bassett Moore, the noted authority on the subject, in thick volumes used as textbooks in the colleges. There will be found a whole series of precedents on neutral rights with reference to blockade and articles that can be confiscated. It is a matter of historical record that, originally, neutral rights were based on the theory that belligerents must confine their hostilities to their own territories or adjacent areas, but now it has swung around to the realistic conception that belligerents may fight anywhere on the seven seas and as close to any neutral country as they like, irrespective of what the neutrals think about it.

A strong assertion of the rights of neutrals may be expected from the United States, but such reaffirmation of American rights will be weakened if the Congress of the United States continues to deviate in the future, as it has since 1935, from the established principles of international law and custom.

The basic principle of international law is that neutrals may ship non-contraband articles and be assured of safe passage. Opinions have differed as to what is contraband, and cases carried to arbitration tribunals for damages and compensation have never accepted the doctrine that the word of a belligerent country is final on that point.

Neutrals usually insist on a wide list of articles, and belligerents insist on narrowing it, but rarely ever has any nation imposed on itself an embargo on foodstuffs and implements of war. America's 1935 position was unique and was challenged very little at the time because it was not believed a world war was forthcoming.

Goat-Raising Is Among County's Farming Activities

Large Herd Kept By Hurley Farmer For Milk Supply

Nutritious Food Demand Seen Increasing Yearly; Area Well Adapted for Industry

Pasture lands and wooded areas which extend deep into the wilderness of this mountain region may some day be the setting for a new major venture in local agriculture.

This belief, which has already amounted to a prediction by men of vision, has assumed new importance in the last decade, and some say now, the time is at hand for a real substantial beginning.

The proposed new step in farming simply amounts to the raising of an animal species more elegantly defined as the caprine hollow-horned ruminant and commonly known as the goat.

One Ulster county farmer, J. D. Sahler, of Hurley, in a large sense, has proved already that goat-raising can be a worthwhile branch of American farming, for he has stuck to the game for 15 years after starting out as modestly as the few other men of the state who have taken goats seriously.

Used Goat's Milk

Mr. Sahler, who now has a herd of 31, made his first attempt at raising the animals after a diet of goat's milk brought recovery from a major illness. He began at the farm which he ran at the time at Accord, and since the day he bought the first two or three as an initial experiment, he had handled between 500 and 600 of the animals.

Goat milk has long been known as a nutritious liquid food and within recent years it has come into more widespread use to build up people whose physical conditions are seriously run down by certain types of illness.

The milk has a particular advantage in the fact that the animals, almost without exception, are not susceptible to tuberculosis. The milk too, is readily digested containing most of the food units of cow's milk.

Often Prescribed

Goat's milk is often prescribed by doctors for people who are allergic to cow's milk and who need it as a food following certain illnesses. It is of special advantage to this type and is often taken by people who enjoy normal health.

Mr. Sahler sells most of the milk from his goats to residents of Kingston and vicinity and in the summer to vacationists who live in this area. The goats give from a pint or less to three quarts of milk and they are milked early each morning and again late in the afternoon.

The herd now kept by Mr. Sahler yields from 10 to 14 quarts of milk a day. Most of the younger goats give only a pint of milk or less and the yield from some of the older animals is not always at its best.

The animals graze on a tract of eight or ten acres on Mr. Sahler's farm at Hurley. They require extra feeding only during the winter months and during droughts such as experienced during the early part of this summer. Hay and oats are used largely in this auxiliary feeding.

Some Rent Goats

Numbered among customers of Mr. Sahler are people who rent out the goats for the summer months. Others buy a goat in the spring or early summer and sell it back in the fall when Mr. Sahler adds it to his regular herd.

Occasionally too a kid is sold during Easter time to an Italian family and its meat used as part of a special fast. The market for skins is not definitely enough established in this area, Mr. Sahler indicated, but he has sold a few. A more definite market could be established in this region for the skins, he believes, if the industry grows to any extent.

Goats graze as well in brushlands as they do in open fields and they are something of an asset in clearing off a piece of brushland. This means that many wooded regions of the Catskills could readily be converted into pasture lands for goat raising, and this belief was often expressed by the late Arthur Brisbane, eminent journalist, who had a farm near Pine Hill.

The United States has been noticeably lacking in any serious effort at raising goats and it is only within comparatively recent years that the industry has been taken seriously in any part of the nation.

One of Largest

The herd of Mr. Sahler is numbered among the largest in the state and it is by far the largest in the county. Efforts are being made to create new interest in the industry and some new enthusiasm is being worked up among those who have started goat farming. A journal is now published on the subject and an organization has been formed to add impetus to the business end of the movement.

The demand for goat's milk has grown steadily within the past six years, Mr. Sahler said, and the indications are that it will continue to grow.

Mr. Sahler has been on the farm at Hurley for 11 years and his business there has been a steady one since he first moved from Accord. He also keeps a herd of cows and between the two, makes his farm pay. He is especially proud of his goats and they appear as contented as the cows, and in a sense, appear more at home.

Few animals are more inquisitive, and those kept by Mr. Sahler are particularly friendly with

Contented Goats Give Steady Yield of Nutritious Milk

Out at Hurley on the fringe of the village's newest section, the landscape takes something of an old-world effect. It could pass for a scene along the slopes of the Alps or some other region of Europe where the farmers specialize in the raising of goats. The animals are out in the fields throughout most of the day. They graze along leisurely, giving little notice to the life around them, unless someone comes close to look them over and then they stop and look too. Their ruminating which looks so casual is in the cause of health and they make a daily contribution to the special diet needs of humans. Shown above at top left is J. D. Sahler, owner of the farm, with the youngest member of the herd, who has not yet stepped out to pasture. At right, Mr. Sahler is shown ready to lead the herd toward the barn. The scene at lower left is one, which perhaps many years ago, gave rise to the out-worn aphorism: "The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence." Mr. Sahler is shown at right milking one of the animals, which seems to take it with an "all in the day's work" attitude.

Study in Blue

Cambridge, Mass. — At five o'clock in the morning, Alfred Hotin, 31, a song writer, was busy at his piano composing a tune he called "In the Bluest of Moods."

The door bell rang, then two policemen — dressed in blue — walked in.

Hotin was fined $10 in court for disturbing the peace.

Elephant Hunt

Los Angeles — Mrs. J. S. Somerset expressed delight after a friend gave her a tiny ivory elephant. The news got around. Relatives deluged her with pachyderms — pink, red, blue, gold, ivory in the form of paper weights, book ends, even vases. She surrendered to the collecting hobby, now has 307.

Reason A-Plenty

Mt. Carroll, Ill. — The mercury soared into the upper 90's, the boys and girls wished vacation time were here again, and yesterday was the 125th anniversary of the composition of the Star Spangled Banner.

But none of these was the reason why Mt. Carroll pupils enjoyed a vacation.

A skunk crawled into the school building ventilator — and classes were dismissed for the day.

Tame Game

Lincoln, Neb. — The Nebraska game commission would appreciate knowing how to make pheasants wild.

A deputy game warden who went to the state pheasant farm to release a penfull of young birds, found them to be attached to the caretaker that they wouldn't leave.

Elizabeth Browning's Sonnet

Elizabeth Barrett Browning's best work, "Sonnets From the Portuguese," written after Browning had won her affection, is a series of love lyrics, strong, tender, unaffected, true, from the depth of a woman's heart. Sympathetic readers, who know the story of her early life and love, are every year realizing that there is nothing else in English literature that could exactly fill their place. Browning called them "the finest sonnets written in any language since Shakespeare's."

Peaceful Explosives

Nearly 500,000,000 pounds of explosives a year ride the railroads in the United States. "These explosives," according to the National Geographic society, "are not used for military purposes. On the contrary, they work for man, on peacetime farms, blasting stumps and boulders out of his way, even preparing the earth for new planting by breaking and loosening the soil."

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Sept. 16 — The Intermediate and Senior Chapters of the Epworth League Society of the Plattekill Methodist Church met Friday evening in the church when the Rev. Dr. George MacDonald, district superintendent, was a guest speaker.

Chapter 12

New Establishment

THROUGHOUT the day George contrasted Buff, her small energetic figure, her agile mind and her self-reliance, with the helplessness and appealing iris.

"Fraid old Tim's the kind that likes to be leaned on," he mused. "Iris got his number the first time she saw him. Golly! When she lifted those long lashes and gave him an 'm-only-a-girl-please-come-to-my-rescue' look, even I started figuring what I could do to help her. Buff, on the other hand, stands straight as a young aspen and defies all the winds of heaven to move her. I wonder—" He found that the line of meditation so profitable that he abandoned it, realizing with a grin that he was depending on Buff to work out her own plan for Tim's ultimate recovery.

Tim accepted the dinner invitation without hesitation. Whether his willingness came from George's inclusion, or whether belated gratitude for Buff's kindness dictated it, his partner and friend found that a whole new important thing was to get Tim within the sphere of Buff's influence.

They found her installed in a five-roomed apartment, the ornate furnishings of which produced solemn amusement in its new tenant. She pointed out a large oil painting above the fireplace.

"It was done by a local artist," she explained. "Before I return it to oblivion I'd like your separate opinions upon its subject. At first I thought it was the explosion of a featherbed on the shore of an Italian lake. Then Mrs. Webb said that it looked to her like a cherry orchard in full bloom 'in a desert sort of place.' This morning the sun slanted on it and I became convinced it was the surrealist's idea of a cottonfield. Now, with the firelight and lamps, I'm beginning to waver. What do you and George think, Tim?"

George made opera glasses of his hands and returned to view the work of art from different angles. Finally he announced that Buff was all wrong in her guesses.

"It's a couple of dozen white pigeons trying to fly without using their wings," he asserted. "Three of 'em are doing a darned good job of it, too. One of 'em is two feet above ground."

To the amazement of the others, Tim joined in the nonsense.

"I'm surprised at you both," he said severely. "Don't you know Art when you see it? The painter has clearly depicted a bushel of popped corn being flung across the way. I suppose it's a summer resort of some kind." He went on thoughtfully, "and the stuff was neither buttered nor salted. The purchaser thus expressed his indignation."

"We're all agreed on its being a water scene of some kind anyway," Buff said with relief. "Now when I get used to one or two other trifling items in the place, I can settle down. For instance, if I want hot water in the bathtub you turn the knob that's marked 'waste.' And vice versa. And those two chairs that I've put in the corner and heeded off with a table are not to be relied upon. Even the original tenants—I'm sub-letting, you know—don't try to sit on one, with alarming results. I weigh around two hundred, and I thought for a while I was going to have to call Mrs. Webb to help me get him to his feet."

Tim ran his hand through his hair, always a sign of bewilderment with him.

"But why did you rent this apartment?" he asked. His eyes went from the rug, against whose crimson background green and yellow flowers were springing, to the array of hideous ornaments on the mantelpiece. "There are plenty of nice places in Boulder. What made you choose this?"

Gay Evening

SHE shook her head but made no reply. Luckily Mrs. Webb came in at that moment and announced dinner.

George rolled expressive eyes as he tasted his soup.

"I hope you're going to ask us to dine here frequently," he said. "When I eat Mrs. Webb's cooking I realize I've practically starved away from here."

"What," Buff demanded cautiously, "do you feel would be frequently?"

"There are seven nights in each and every week," George said. "I don't want to presume on good nature, and it's true that if and when you leave Boulder Tim and I will have to subsist on what we receive at our boarding house. I think every other evening would be a happy compromise. don't you?" That will give you time to fuss up if you like our company, or if you rest up if you don't. That strike you as fair and square, Tim?"

"It does not," he was the succulent answer. "Buff, pay no attention to me. His lower nature gets the better of him when he's hungry. After dinner he'll be more reasonable."

It was a gay evening. Buff was careful to make it so, avoiding any topic which might disturb Tim. "But just you wait, my dear boy," she mused when her guests had departed with enthusiastic thanks for her entertainment. "I shall play a waiting game for a few days—a week perhaps. After that, the deluge!"

She let both George and Tim severely alone for the next two days. Indeed it was George who telephoned to ask if she had forgotten about them, lost Mrs. Webb's valuable services, or had fallen into the lake depicted in the masterpiece over the mantel.

"I've been busy," she said. "But you can both come to dinner tonight, if you like."

"If we like?"

George threw sufficient feeling into the words to make other comment unnecessary. But when he told Tim of his plans he encountered an unexpected obstacle.

"Go if you wish—and since you invited yourself," he said. "But I have other plans."

Questioned closely, he muttered of work to be done at the laboratory, "trying to catch up." George argued and pleaded in vain. Finally he again had recourse to the telephone.

Tim says he can't come tonight," he announced plaintively. "Can't or won't?" inquired Buff. "Says 'can't,' means 'won't!'" "Leave him to me!"

So it was that when Tim emerged from his tiny office a little after six, he found Buff's car parked in front and Buff herself slumped restfully in the seat. She had the air of having been in that position for hours.

"Hop in!" she bade him. "Nonsense, of course you'll come. Well, you can wash up in my bathroom as well as in your own, can't you? Your shirt is reasonably clean," she added, inspecting it critically. "Anyway Webby's heart will be broken if you aren't there to eat her biscuits."

Very, Very Determined

HE HESITATED, but the door she held open and the imperious gesture of her small hand were too much. He climbed in. Presently he said: "Look here, Buff, it seems we'll have to talk this over after all. I hoped by this time you'd have tired of your efforts to look after me. I hoped your father would have sent for you. I hoped

"You hoped to get rid of me, in fact!" Her tone was cheerful and she gave a little tilt to her perky hat. She looked gamineish and very, very determined. "You're wasting a lot of my time, Tim, and not doing yourself any good either. But I'm prepared to let you drift a while. Tonight I want you to see what I've done to the apartment."

She had done a great deal, he discovered. The too-cheerful rug had been replaced by a resplendent square. Several comfortable armchairs stood about. An open bookcase gloved with color from rows of volumes. The painted monotony above the mantel had disappeared and a panel of Lane's cartoons, plainly framed, lent an impish note to the room. Ash trays stood conveniently about; the big square pillows on the couch were covered with whippersn.

"Much better. And cost about a thousand dollars, I suppose."

She produced a slip of paper which she showed triumphantly in his unwilling hand.

"Eighty-seven dollars and forty-five cents," she announced. "Of course the cartoons and the books aren't included. I brought them from the ranch. But all the rest I paid spot cash for."

"Imagination must be the strong point in the Carroll family," he said rudely. "I happen to have priced a couch similar to this myself. It was a hundred and forty-five dollars. As for the rug—"

George, horrified, attempted to interrupt but Buff intervened calmly.

"Both are secondhand," she said. "The couch was all right as to springs but needed re-covering. That stuff looked expensive but it's only glazed chintz. The rug was a bargain because it had a burned place in one corner. Webby and I put the biggest chair over that so you can't see it. A carpenter made and stained the bookshelves for me. You'll find them on that list. $11.60. They're only pine though they do look like walnut," she concluded complacently.

"Golly, what a wife you'll make some man!" The words burst from George involuntarily. "I know I'm getting a bit thin on top, but then all the Webbs' come bald prematurely. Once you get that firmly fixed in your mind, it doesn't seem nearly so bad. Buff and I know I'm—not slender, but I'm sure the right diet could correct all that. Do you think you might consider me darling?"

She shook her head.

"Sorry, George. I thought you knew. Tim and I are practically engaged."

"We're not!" He glared at her. "It's all right to have your joke, Buff, but if you aren't careful people will begin to talk. All college towns are gossipy didn't you know that?" How'd you like to have everybody taking you seriously on this subject?"

"It gives me an idea," she said. "Dinner, Webby? Come and eat. Tim. You won't be half so cross after you've been fed."

Continued Monday.

Local Officers Will Attend Convention Of National Guard

Military Leaders Will Discuss Coming Expansion of National Guard and Other Matters

The fall convention of the New York National Guard Association at Albany, September 22 and 23, will present the first real opportunity for military leaders of this state to get together for discussions on the coming expansion of the National Guard and other current military matters of vital importance.

Officers from this city who will be present at the two-day session include: Capt. Charles N. Behrens, Adjutant, 156 F. A.; Capt. Ernest A. Steuding, Commanding Battery "A," 156 F. A.; Capt. Fred L. Coombs, Commanding Hqs. Battery, 1st Bn., 156 F. A.; 1st Lt. Harold V. Clayton, P. & T. Co., 1st Bn. 156 F. A.; 1st Lt. W. Robert Reindel, Btry. "A," 156 F. A.; 1st Lt. Andrew W. Mitchell, Hqs. Btry., 1st Bn. 156 F. A.; 2nd Lt. Thomas L. Flynn, Btry. "A," 156 F. A.; 2nd Lt. Andrew J. Schroeder, Hqs. Btry., 1st Bn., 156 F. A.; 2nd Lt. John J. Mikesh, Btry. "A," 156 F. A.

Though no official figures have yet been received on the allocation of the 45,000 additional guardsmen to the various states, it is understood that the personnel of the New York National Guard will be increased by some 4,000 additional enlisted men under the president's recent authorization of general increases in the nation's armed forces.

The matter of absorbing these 4,000 additional men in the New York National Guard, as well as the details of recruiting will be one of the high spots in the convention discussions. Other vital matters slated to come up at the gathering will include methods of training, adoption of the Army's new Tables of Organization, and steps to correct deficiencies brought out by the recent First Army maneuvers at Plattsburg.

Bringing together as it does, the most prominent military men in this section of the country to give advice and counsel to National Guard and Militia officers of the state, the convention is an event of utmost importance in National Guard circles in view of the mounting national defense needs which have crept upon the country as the result of the European situation.

Heading the list of speakers at the convention banquet Friday evening, September 22, will be Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the First Army, director of the recent Plattsburg maneuvers and the only living officer who has served as chief of staff of an American Army during actual combat. With such a record of military service and accomplishment, General Drum is well informed as to the present needs of the Army and National Guard and much of this information along with valuable material on training needs and methods will be imparted to the guard officers in his address.

The afternoon session Friday will be addressed by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Maj. Gen. William M. Haskell, commanding general of the New York National Guard; Adjutant Gen. Walter G. Robinson, adjutant general of the state of New York; and Rear Admiral Frank R. Lackey, commander of the New York Naval Militia. The convention will open Friday morning with an address of welcome by Mayor John Boyd Thacher, of Albany. A reception will be conducted in the evening prior to the banquet, in honor of General Drum. The reception arrangements are in charge of Col. Ogden J. Ross, commander of the 105th Infantry, of Troy. Election of officers will take place at the Saturday morning session.

Hoarding of Foods Is Boggling Down

caused the removal of the sugar quota figures and allowed the importation of unrestricted quantities of sugar into the country. Sugar was being advertised the last of this week as low as five pounds for 28 cents and the wholesale market was off. In most cities sugar dropped a quarter of a cent a pound and supplies both wholesale and retail were about back to normal.

Among other staples advertised by Freeman advertisers over the week-end was flour at 89 cents an eighth. Evaporated milk was also being quoted at our cans for 22 cents and butter was selling at 26 cents. Pork was higher but steaks were being sold as low as 29 cents per pound and rib roast was quoted at 32 cents. Beef continues to be scarce because of lack of shipments from the midwest and remains higher but pork which took a very sudden upward spurt as reported declining again in price.

Eggs, cheese, dry beans, spiced meat and potatoes are selling above pre-war, but are showing no marked tendency to climb higher for the present.

A food price investigation launched by Governor Lehman early this week is being conducted in key cities of the state and State Commissioner of Agriculture Hoyes said he expected to have a report on the alleged war profiteering within the next few days.

One retailer said today that housewives "seem to realize now that there is sufficient quantities of food in the country and are covering from their war scare and again are buying normal quantities."

Trespass Case Hearing Is Denied

employ of the city entered upon his property and cut down trees and did other acts pertaining to the preliminary survey which caused great damage to his lands. He brought an action at special term in May before Justice Schirck to compel the hearing of his claim before a commission appointed in condemnation proceedings.

At that time he named the appraisal board officers of the city and Justice Schirck denied the petition. Later an action for mandamus was brought against the commissioners and heard at special term here in September before Justice Bergan. It is this petition which is now denied on the grounds that any action of Eagle for trespass is a separate action from any action which might arise from the taking of lands under the condemnation proceeding. He holds that the commissioners are without jurisdiction to award damages for trespass or any other tort.

Maurice Lefkowitz of 570 Seventh avenue, New York, appeared for petition and the court grants that the corporation counsel of the city of New York, by Henry R. Bright, and Vincent G. Connelly respondents moved to dismiss the petition and that the court grants application and directs that an order to that effect be submitted.

In his memorandum Justice Bergan says: "The authority of the respondents in the condemnation proceeding in which they have been appointed as commissioners of the appraisal board is fixed by statute (Chapter 929, Laws of 1937, Section K41-9.0). It is to 'ascertain and appraise the compensation to be made to the owners and all persons interested' in the real estate laid down on such maps 'proposed to be' taken or affected 'for the purpose indicated in this article.' The words 'to be taken' clearly relate to those parcels of property the fee in which is to be acquired by the city as disclosed on the maps prepared and adopted in pursuance of Section K41-5.0. The word 'affected' in this article relates to the easements which must also be disclosed on the maps. Section K41-5.0 requires such easements to be delineated upon the map showing the parcels over or through which 'the right to use and occupy the same in perpetuity, is to be acquired.'"

It would seem to follow from the scheme of the statute that only these two classes of damage, arising from (a) the taking of fee, or (b) the acquisition of an easement to use in perpetuity fall within the jurisdiction of the respondents. Both must be disclosed clearly by the taking maps. The commissioners are without jurisdiction to award damage for trespass or any other tort.

They are limited, with the exception of certain lands adjoining the Esopus Creek, to an award of damages for lands actually to be taken in fee or to be used in perpetuity in connection with the plant and structure of the water supply and its appurtenances as disclosed by the maps. If the agents of the Board of Water Supply enter upon private lands in pursuance of Section K41-4.0, and actually do damage to lands in pursuance of such authority, the remedy is against them or the city for their tort.

The damages thus arising are not delineated upon any map prepared in pursuance of Section K41-5.0 and such lands have not been "taken or affected" for the purpose indicated in the article within the scope of Section K41-5.0. The categories enumerated in the section providing limitations of time for presenting claims (Section K41-18.0) are somewhat broader in scope than the authority vested in the commissioners of appraisal to make awards. But, though the limitations are broader than the authority, they cannot be construed as enlarging the scope of the jurisdiction of these respondents. A similar conclusion was reached by Mr. Justice Schirck at the Special Term in Ulster County in May, 1939, upon the application of this petitioner against other respondents. While additional questions were passed upon in that application, the court indicated clearly that it was of opinion that the petitioner's claim for damage would not be within the jurisdiction of a commission of appraisal.

Heneph Concern Plans Expansion

A plan of expansion and reorganization which includes extensive alterations and repairs to the local plant, was formally approved by stockholders at a meeting yesterday in the office of the Heneph Corp., 75 Pine street.

Under the new plan provision is made to promote the sale of Sulpho-Kaps in an extensive manner. The product is now sold in close to 1,000 towns and cities and this number will be greatly increased.

The reorganization of the Heneph Corporation was completed under the direction of C. P. Franchot, of the law firm of Franchot & Schachtel of New York City. Mr. Franchot will act as general counsel to the corporation and will also participate in the management.

Lloyd B. Whittaker, president of the Whittaker Laboratories, Inc., New York City, will be president and general manager, and Vincent J. Lynch, vice president of Jasper, Lynch & Fishel, Inc., Advertising Agency of New York City, will be vice president in charge of advertising and promotion. Henry Woolsey and Ephraim Burke, founders of the Heneph Corporation, will continue as in the past in the development of sales.

Mr. Franchot was born in Olean, and is general counsel for Remington Rand, Inc. He is also chairman of the Board of Sonotone, Inc., and general counsel. Mr. Franchot served as a staff officer during the World War and was retired in 1922 as a lieutenant colonel of cavalry. Under the skilled guidance of Mr. Franchot many corporations have developed into outstanding institutions in their respective fields.

Lloyd B. Whittaker, president of Whittaker Laboratories of New York City, built that company into a dividend paying institution. The products of Whittaker Laboratories are now being used by physicians from coast to coast. Dr. Martinat has been engaged as director of research and control, and will also supervise the production of Colloidal Sulphur in the laboratories here. Colloidal Colloidal Sulphur is the active ingredient in Sulpho-Kaps. Dr. Martinat was formerly employed by Bristol Meyers, Inc., in division of research and control.

Extensive repairs and alterations will be made at the premises to the plant, office and laboratory—among some improvements will be a new central heating plant. The entire building will be entirely insulated. The laboratories will be increased to twice the space—thereby increasing the output of Colloidal Sulphur for use in Sulpho-Kaps.

The directors of the Heneph Corporation are: Henry Woolsey, Ephraim Burke, Ethel Woolsey, Frank Randall, Lloyd B. Whittaker, Charles P. Franchot, Vincent J. Lynch.

FASHIONS and HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

Lassies in Plaids Fit Fall's Mode

The Scotch have had something to say about casual early fall fashions. Their tartans appear in frocks, skirts and jackets. This dress designed by Mr. Stollen of deep blue, white and green-plaided wool has a bias skirt for smart contrast.

A big block plaid pattern has been the fashion for some seasons down the front. Its warm grape tones harmonize with the pleated wool jersey dress worn under it. A grape felt hat and silver earrings and bracelet add to its casual chic.

Hunting A Job? Then Exercise Is Important

It Will Help To Combat Nervous Indigestion, Give You Pep

Fall is job-hunting season for many girls. So we asked Betty Clarke, our beauty expert, for some advice for girls who are seeking—and those who get—jobs. This is the first of a series she will write on that topic.

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

Nervous indigestion is a common ailment among business women. It is even more common among job-seekers.

There is no way to cure it, but you can do a lot to minimize it, says Catherine Van Rensselaer, director of physical education at the American Woman's Club in New York.

Exercise—not violent, but frequent, short periods of exercise—will help.

Most of it should be done in the morning, not at bed time, because most exercises stimulate circulation—and, therefore, tend to wake you up.

Miss Van Rensselaer suggests ten to twenty minutes of exercises before the morning shower. "I know the average business woman will never in the world get that done every day," she says. "But if she does it once or twice a week and is conscientious about it on week-ends that will help lots more than she may realize."

Miss Van Rensselaer suggests:

1. Don't leap out of bed and start exercising like a house afire. Your heart shouldn't have to take that all at once. "You never saw an animal go at it that way," she remarks. "A cat, for instance, stretches slowly—and works up from there."

2. Begin with the well-known "airplane," that exercise in which you bend and touch your toes, alternating the hands—right hand to left toe, then left hand to right toe.

Morning exercises will minimize tenseness. The sketches illustrate good ones described in the article. The one illustrated in the photograph is for the abdominal muscles. Bring both knees to your chest. Then SLOWLY lower them. Repeat eight or ten times.

3. Following by a little "bicycling." Lie on your back. Prop your legs up in the air by holding your hands under your hips. Stretch your legs as much as you can as you pretend you're pedaling around and around.

4. Doing at least one exercise by lying down on the floor, bringing your knees to your chest—and then slowly lowering them. Vary that by bringing them up to the right, swinging them across your stomach and letting them down at the left.

5. Finishing up with a posture exercise. Stand up with your back against the wall. Make yourself as tall as possible. See that your knees and calves are together—but not thrown back. Tuck your abdominal muscles up and in. Raise your head, lift your chin, stretch your neck as much as you can. Throw your chest up and out—and your shoulders down and back. Now walk away from the wall and hold it.

Your Screen Test

1. What actress (pictured here) had marital troubles which resulted in the change of title of the film in which she is currently starred? Her husband is a captain in the English army.

2. What was the motion picture (and novel) name of the Utopia where the civilization and culture of the world were to be preserved while the other nations of earth exhausted themselves in war?

3. What was the first great World War comedy? The star was an English comedian, previously a star of one- and two-reelers, and the picture was shown just about the time of the Armistice.

4. Name four pictures based on the World war which were of sufficient importance and popularity to be included in the "Ten Best Pictures of the Year." (Only pictures released from 1922 to 1938, inclusive, have been voted on for the "Ten Best" lists. It is not necessary to know the lists to name four of the outstanding World war pictures.)

5. Identify the following animals: (a) Asta, (b) Leo the Lion, (c) Tony, (d) Pluto.

Count 20 points for each question correctly answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 is excellent, and 90 or above is colossal.

Noosed Necks New New Note In Paris Styles

By ALICE MAXWELL
AP Feature Service Writer

Paris—Necks are noosed in new Paris dress collections.

Woolen suits have heavy cords running around the necks. New fur capes are short, new coats are snugged to chins with ball-and-chain clasps. Clowns' collars, those big ruffs of starched muslin, are being copied in furs to top winter coats.

Chanel produces springlike ruffles of white organdie or fine linen, daintily lace edged, and choker-tied around necks with the knot behind. They thicken in front, then toward the rear; crowd into the small opening at the jacket top and crowd out again at the wrist.

Creed's clerical collars of starched white linen, closed at the back, noose the necks of tailored frocks, while softened versions, fronted with frilled jabots, finish organdie or handkerchief-linen blouses. Here also are the cord trimmings on the jackets, encircling the neck and making a graceful loop in front before anchoring under a stunning button near the left shoulder.

Many evening necks are soberly high. Jeweled necklaces make rings around them, sewed tight to the fabric to look like embroidery, and tied loosely in back to appear free. Some swing low in front, with radiating lines of jewels spreading in sunburst design.

Other evening frocks are neck-laced with the thick white ruelings. A black velvet dinner dress has a high-necked sheer yoke unruffled but scattered over with black velvet stars, little and big. Blouses for evening suits are being shown in spangled crepes, their necks shirt-waist high and bow-tied. The blouses are white, the suits black with white spangled revers or a white fox collar.

Fur-Trimmed Mittens
Paris (AP)—Fur-trimmed mittens have been decreed to keep step with fur-trimmed hats. Black cloth mittens with a Persian lamb hat have Persian lamb bindings here and there. Mittens cuffed with black fox join a black felt hat topped with it. Gloves and hat combine in gold mesh gloves matched to the gold mesh veil of a black velvet toque.

Try cooking your jams and butters in the oven instead of on top of the stove. You'll avoid a lot of spattering. Put them in a wide kettle or earthenware dish and bake them in a moderately slow oven until they're thick. They'll require less watching than when cooked on top of the stove, but stir them a few times with a long-handled wooden spoon.

Correct feeding of babies and mothers of babies is of prime importance today. Helpful information is given in Cornell Bulletin E-300, and single copies may be had free from the Office of Publications, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, N. Y.

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

Shirts and skirts are going to college in great numbers this year. Here you see one of the new long sleeved shirts of white-striped gray-green flannel tailored by a maker of men's shirts and worn with a very short flannel skirt in the same shade of gray-green.

For a fancy salad mold, a double-decker affair, place a two-inch layer of lemon gelatin and peas in a shallow mold. Stiffen and cover with another layer of lemon gelatin mixed this time with diced celery, tuna or salmon and sweet pickles. Chill until firm. Cut into squares, spread with salad dressing or mayonnaise and serve on crisp salad greens.

A convenient filing system for flower and vegetable seeds may be made in the fall by gluing together six match boxes, three boxes high and two wide; label each box with the name of the seeds that is in it.

Screen Test Answers
1. Madeleine Carroll. "Are Husband Necessary," after change to "Money-Moon in Jail." Her husband is Capt. Philip Astley.
2. Shanghai-Lu in "Lost Horizon."
3. "Shoulder Arms," of which the star was Charlie Chaplin.
4. Outstanding pictures of the World war which made the "Ten Best" lists were "The Big Parade," "What Price Glory," "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Hell's Angels," "Seventh Heaven," "Journeys End" and "Pearl Harbor."
5. (a) The Nick Charles' dog in "The Thin Man" pictures; (b) The dog that introduces the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures; (c) Tom Mix's horse; (d) The dog in the Mickey Mouse films.

Helps for Housewives

This is the way to clean drapes: Hang them carefully over a line in the air—not in the sun for fear of fading. With a stiff brush, begin at the top and brush down with long, even strokes. Then shake lightly. Brush the backs of the drapes as thoroughly as the front. If you prefer to use the vacuum cleaner, lay the drapes on a flat surface indoors and go over them carefully, taking care not to tear or pull the fabric.

Something new in sandwich filling: Mix equal parts of crushed pineapple and chopped smoked ham, season with a dash of horseradish and a little mayonnaise. Spread on buttered slices of thick cut, very fresh white bread. Roll until serving time. For the canape tray cut the rolls in half inch slices—for the sandwich basket use the sandwiches as rolled.

Here's a new idea for dressing up pastry desserts made from fresh fruit or berries: reserve some of the most perfect fruit, chill it until serving time and then side dress the dessert. For instance, a few blue berries on top of a deep-dish blueberry pie or some red raspberries or black berries right next a deep dish cobbler or berry pie.

An assortment of knives are kitchen aids and time savers. Have one large slicing or butcher knife, one bread cutter, at least two paring knives and a narrow spatula. Keep the knives in a rack fastened inside the cupboard door. That will keep the knives both accessible and sharp.

To make cheesy canapes to serve with cocktails, try this: Spread thinly-rolled pie crust with equal portions of Roquefort and pimento cheese. Roll up like tiny pin-wheels. Cut off quarter-inch slices and bake them, flat, for five minutes in a modern oven. They are good warm or cold.

To the Bar for Beauty
Paris (AP)—Banks of American bars in Paris, already reaching from the Bastille to the swank purlieus of the Porte Dauphine, have a new addition—the Vitamin Bar. It serves tomato cobbles and potassium flips. There's an iron cocktail for pale people, many mixes for the non-lean, and numerous drinks generally in the cause of beauty.

Storing Paint Brushes
To store paint brushes for use next spring, soak them soft in turpentine, then wash them thoroughly in warm soapy water. Wipe dry and lay away on a flat surface.

Learn French at Home And Shine in Public

Versailles Bijou

Be at Ease in Any Circle
The girl who doesn't know French—how bewildered she is when she meets sophisticated people who travel, who dine at fine restaurants!

Accustomed to pronouncing Versailles as VER-SAILS she has to ask "What's that?" when others speak correctly of VER-SIGH.

Show a picture of the city of NICE (pronounced NEECE) she doesn't guess it's the place she always speaks of as if it were the English adjective "nice."

But French pronunciation is really simple—when you learn the few necessary rules.

This one gives you a tip on words like Versailles. To the letters "ill" you nearly always give a "y" sound. The "s" final consonants are seldom pronounced.

As for NICE, you pronounce the French "i" like "ee." Speak of the Bijou Theatre as the Bee-JU.

You quickly pick up a French vocabulary, too. Dining out you see POTAGE DU JOUR on the menu. It means soup of the day. CAFE NOIR—black coffee; FROMAGE—cheese.

Our 32-page booklet gives a complete guide to French pronunciation, basic grammar. Gives expressions you use when shopping, dining, traveling, in conversation—a social asset.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of TEACH YOURSELF TO SPEAK FRENCH to Kingston Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Parent-Teacher Ass'n

Flatbush P. T. A.
The Flatbush Parent-Teacher Association held its first regular meeting for 1939-40 season at the school on Wednesday evening, September 6.

A very interesting and helpful evening was spent discussing plans for the new program. From the interest shown and ideas suggested it promises to be a most profitable and enjoyable year.

GRANGE NEWS

Asbury Grange
The regular meeting of the Asbury Grange was held at the Grange hall on Monday night with a very fine number of members present.

Important items of business were discussed and a good lecturer's hour enjoyed. It consisted of poems, songs by the Grangers, readings on various topics, some very fine selections on the piano, and games. Refreshments followed.

Fruit areas are usually near large bodies of water because the temperature is more uniform and the growing season is longer than in other areas.

Rail Mileage Equals

Four Trips to Moon
BELLEVUE, OHIO.—James Furlong, dean of Nickel Plate railroad engineers, retired after nearly 51 years of service during which friends figured he had traveled a distance equal to four round trips to the moon.

Furlong estimates his total mileage at 2,000,000 miles. The mean distance to the moon is 238,857 miles. On this basis he has traveled on rails a distance equal to more than four trips to the moon and back.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personal Side of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

Gifts to a Son's Fiancee

Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be proper for mother and me to send a personal gift—such as a pretty nightgown—to the girl to whom my brother's engagement has just been announced? We have never met her, as she does not live here, but goodness knows we have heard of her incessantly for some months!

Answer: I wouldn't choose a nightgown, but if you have already bought it, why don't you keep it and give it to her later when you know her well. If I were you, I would write her the most welcoming letter that you possibly can, and then wait to give her something when you know her better and know what she would like to have.

A Funeral Check

Dear Mrs. Post: When my mother died, my father's office associates gave him a check from all of them. They did not send flowers. I am writing to every one who sent flowers and has shown other personal kindness, and I wondered what I should do about writing to father's office. They gave this check to him personally because, I am sure, they knew how badly we needed it, and I don't know whether to consider that this is something between father and them, or whether it would be in order for me to write too.

Answer: In this particular instance, thanks should be sent by your father. He should write to whoever carried out the idea and ask him to thank the others. For that matter he will probably tell each of these associates as he sees them, how much he appreciated their thoughtfulness.

Serving Iced Tea and Coffee

Dear Mrs. Post: (1) I love should the lemon be cut that is served with iced tea? And is it put right in the glass or passed in a separate dish or impaled on the rim of the glass? (2) Also, please tell me whether after-dinner coffee should be served at a dinner party when iced coffee was served during the meal.

Answer: (1) If you make your tea without lemon in it, then a small amount of lemon should be cut in quarters, but more of it sliced, and both should be proffered. If lemon is already in the tea, then put a slice in the glass for looks. Lemon impaled on the rim of the glass suggests a restaurant rather than a private home, but there is no objection to this if you like it. (2) Usually, yes, because many people at the table may not like the iced coffee, and may prefer to wait for the hot coffee.

Formal Dinner at Small Tables?
Dear Mrs. Post: Can a formal dinner be served at small tables?

Answer: At tables of eight, yes. On card tables set for four, usually no, but possibly yes—depending upon the menu, the table appointments and service.

G. L. F. Patrons' Annual Meeting

New Paltz, Sept. 16.—The G. L. F. Patrons' annual meeting of the New Paltz Cooperative G. L. F. Service, Inc., held in Huguenot Grange hall last Tuesday night, was attended by nearly 200 interested persons who heard the reports of their local cooperative farm supply business and elected two committeemen. Earl Kisor and Henry Metz were re-elected members of the patrons committee for a term of three years after the other nominations which included Fred DuBois, Timothy Sullivan, J. E. Dodd and Frank Elliott of New Paltz. The group listened to talks and reports by Carl Talcott, manager of the local agency, Walter Kelley, G. L. F. Egg Auction, Poughkeepsie, and Fred Auction, Highland, and Stanley Bangs, manager G. L. F. wholesale Farm Supplies Warehouse in Sussex, N. J., who was chairman of the meeting and appointed Abe Paradies, Calvin Frier and Louis LeFevre of New Paltz to report on nominations and to act as tellers of the election. Local store manager, Carl Talcott, was secretary of the meeting. Following the business meeting Fred L. Van Deusen, magician, and Dietz and his Cowhans furnished entertainment. Refreshments were served and a pleasant evening with dancing followed.

ARDONIA

Ardonia, Sept. 15.—Eugene Paltz is named on the committee in charge of the fruit and vegetable exhibit at the annual fair of the Plattekill Grangers on Tuesday evening, September 19, in the Grange Hall.

The Wold Brothers have purchased the vegetable route and truck of Herbert Winters, of Modena. Mr. Winters has given up his vegetable and fruit business, and is employed at Poughkeepsie.

Fruit growers in this section are furnishing employment to many people in picking and packing fruit at this season.

Arthur Seymour of Tillson, was a recent caller in town.

Mrs. Delia Butler is ill at her home near here. Dr. Alex Barclay of Newburgh is in attendance. Sylvester Withers has employment with Eugene Paltridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Eber Palmer and daughters Maureen and Annette, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eckert at Clintondale.

Local members of the Epworth League of the Modena Methodist Church will assist in presenting the circus in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening, September 20.

Hadassah Opens Season

The opening meeting of Hadassah will be held Monday evening at 7 o'clock with a dinner at Judie's on Albany avenue. All members are urged to attend.

To better living

WOMEN don't mean to be contradictory, but how can they help it sometimes?

If a woman enters a group and spies another wearing a dress just like her own, the occasion is unhappy for both until one retires from the scene.

On the other hand, we were told by a woman the other day, as we demonstrated our Easy washing machine in her home, that she never would have asked for a demonstration if she hadn't learned that two of her friends had had demonstrations.

So you won't wear a dress if another woman has one like it, but you'll not ask us for a demonstration unless you think lots of others have!

Seems like a contradiction. But is it? No! It's perfectly natural for a woman not to want to appear dressed identically like another, because it frustrates her instinct for individuality. But when she doesn't want a washing machine demonstration unless she

Yom Kippur Is Day of Atonement

Following the tradition of ages, Jews will gather in the Synagogue, Friday evening, September 22, the eve of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the most solemn holy day in the Jewish calendar. It is a day of fasting and prayer which will last until sundown, Saturday, September 23. Orthodox, Conservative and Liberal observe this one-day holy day.

Characteristic of the evening services are the prayers which are recited. Each individual said his own prayers asking for forgiveness and for another year of good life. Not related to any national festival or historic event, Yom Kippur probably developed out of a desire to prepare, in a fitting way, for the grateful celebration of the harvest which follows.

(Notice prepared by The Trustees of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Merchants Bldg., Cincinnati, O.)

service that ushers in the holy days is the Kol Nidre chant whose origin is buried in the story of the past.

One of three festivals which was evolved from an ancient autumn harvest feast, Yom Kippur is the holiest day of the ceremony in the days of the second temple. A week was spent in preparation for the services, which were conducted only by the high priest of Israel. Jews from all parts of the world made a pilgrimage to the temple in Jerusalem in order to participate in this ceremony of fasting and prayer for a new year of life.

After the destruction of the second temple, there was no longer a

Colonial Cagers Will Return; Athletic Field Is Procured

Kate Smith's Five At the Auditorium For League Games

Price Increase and Tuesday Contests Approved by Fans at Public Meeting Last Night

Kingston will be represented in the American Basketball League this season—and by Kate Smith's Celtics.

Final plans to bring the club back to the municipal auditorium were completed last night at the public meeting in the Ulster county court house.

After lengthy discussions, with everyone having his say, it was decided that the two changes, differentiating from last year's arrangements, would be acceptable to local basketball fans.

The necessary changes: An increase in prices, with 15 cents being added on to last year's general admission figure, and 10 cents on the reserved seat amount. Designation of Tuesday night instead of Wednesday for playing league games.

Haver Explains

Attorney N. Levan Haver, chairman of the meeting, opened a discussion with a resume of the activities carried on by the Kingston basketball committee since its group took over Frank Jorgewick's Colonial two years ago.

He reported a loss of $700 on the first venture, and a $200 gain off at the end of last season. He informed the gathering of the $100 a week increase asked by Barney Sedran to return to Kingston this year.

"Sedran is fair in asking the increase," Haver said, "because we have studied his expense accounts and realized that there was no profit for him at the figure quoted at season."

He qualified his statement by saying that it cost Ted Collins, Smith's manager, about $10,000 to keep the team operating for publicity purposes last year.

The committee, reluctant to use prices before conferring with the fans of the game, seemed exceptionally pleased when all present agreed on the slight increase.

"It must be done, if Kingston wants professional basketball," said Chairman Haver, with Matt Sedran and Jack Faye, other members of the committee nodding in the affirmative.

Attorney Joseph Forman, the fourth backer of the club was not present.

Concerning the change in nights from Wednesday to Tuesday, the committee was of the opinion that the shift would make no difference as far as patronage is concerned.

Fans Favor Change

One after the other, the fans endorsed Chairman Haver with cheers that Kingston really wanted basketball and to the extent that any night would be acceptable.

The change in nights had to be made because another club in the American League, which made similar arrangements long ago to sponsor a team, asked for Wednesday.

And Kate Smith, who owns the Celtics, expressed a desire to attend six or seven of the league games this season to watch her favorites.

At the close of the meeting, a parade of sports fans was a sight to see as they filed out of the auditorium to announce: "Kate Smith's Celtics will be back, and Kingston will have professional basketball."

Boiceville Game

Sunday Afternoon

Boiceville will make its second appearance for victory over the Olive Ridge club of oldtimers Sunday afternoon, the game being scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

Manager Al Roosa of the Olive Ridgeers said, in announcing the game, "We're out to avenge that humiliating Boiceville handed us two weeks ago, and Bill Knapp is better than his first stringers."

McManus probably will start in either role for Boiceville, either Charles Boice or Bill Knapp will take over the pitching assignment for the Olive Ridgeers. Al Flanagan will do catching.

Two Softball

Games on Sunday

Because of a change in plans, Hercules-Forst softball game will be played Sunday afternoon. Sunday schedule follows:

Hercules vs. Forst at Block 2 p. m.
Hercules vs. Fullers at Hasbrouck 2 p. m.

Forty men in 40 counties of New York state who own "approved" disease-free birds are receiving state Professor C. G. Bradt's veterinary assistance in retesting these birds.

spaced six hits effectively as well as bringing in one run with a double and hitting a single with the bases loaded for two others.

The Red Sox were victims of seven-hit pitching by Willis Hudlin and a 15-hit offensive. The Philadelphia Athletics edged out the Chicago White Sox 3-2 with all their runs coming on Bob Johnson's 22nd homer with two in the first inning. The St. Louis Browns bowled over Washington 9-5 with the help of six errors by the Senators.

Cincinnati continued its recent terrific hitting in taking the first game of the doubleheader with the Giants 10-6 and running a sudden winning streak to six games. Led by Ernie Lombardi and Frank McCormick the Reds got 18 hits. But in the nightcap errors and some ineffectual pitching let New York take a lead that was good enough to win 4-3 when darkness closed in after seven innings.

The St. Louis-Boston game was a pitching duel between Bob Bowman and Jim Turner for 11 innings—and their relief carried on nobly until the last of the 14th when Enos (Country) Slaughter doubled and Joe Medwick brought him around with a single.

Brooklyn also was forced to extra lengths to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, jamming across two runs in the tenth for a 4-2 decision.

The Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies split a double bill. The tail-enders crowded six runs into the third inning to take the opener 9-6 and the Cubs came back in the nightcap 6-1 with Vance Page and Claude Passeau cooperating in a four-hit pitching show.

The Yankees victory yesterday, halting a three-game slide, showed Steve Sundra into the forefront of major league pitchers with ten triumphs and no defeats. He Philadelphia, Sept. 16 (AP)—Tony Galento was back on top of the world again today, yelling for another chance at the heavyweight championship and likely to get it, following his bloody 14th round technical knockout of Lou Nova last night in the Municipal Stadium.

Regarded by a majority of critics as easy prey for the powerful Californian, round Tony came back to give Nova a fearful punching, knock him down four times and forced Referee George Blake to stop it in 2:44 of the 14th. Both fighters looked like they had been hit by trucks at the finish, and for the last five rounds the crowd was imploring Blake to stop it.

Tony led all the way, from the instant he landed a terrific left hook on Nova's jaw in the second round. He would have won by a wide margin on points if the fight had gone the limit. Nova's efforts to box him were futile. Every time he started a left jab, his best weapon, Tony nearly knocked his head off. It was a surprising and amazing exhibition of hard punching and endurance by the Orange barkeep.

Nova Down Twice

In the third round, Tony clipped Nova to the canvas for a count of one. In the eighth he had him down again for no count, and in the final chapter Lou was on the floor twice for three and eight before Blake took pity on him. Tony was staggered a couple of times here and there, but he never went down.

From the third round on Nova bled furiously from cuts around his right eye, and his handlers did wonders in bringing him out at all toward the last. His face was a crimson blotch. One of Nova's straight lefts drove Tony's teeth through his lower lip midway of the carnage, and from there on everybody in the ring, including the referee, was smeared with the claret.

Mike Jacobs Restless

Promoter Mike Jacobs, sitting at the ringside for the first time in his career, fidgeted and talked to himself as Tony made a shambles of his beautiful "white hope." There had been no doubt in Mike's mind that Lou would be the one to fight the winner of next week's battle between Joe Louis and Bob Pastor in Detroit.

Now it is a question whether he will want to put Galento in the championship ring again, especially with Louis, but the weight of public opinion might force his hand. Tony looked great last night, and he wants another shot.

Hot After Lou

"I'll stop that Louis in two rounds next time," he said earnestly as he peered out of his one good eye.

As for Nova, his bubble has burst. He thought he was a boy of destiny, and he thought Galento would do no more than give him a good workout. He learned last night that he did not have the punch to stop a really rugged fighter, and that his own jaw was not made of concrete after all.

He wasted a lot of power trying to make a dent in Galento's stomach. His lefts only made Tony mad, and his best rights merely slowed the great Galento up long enough for him to swing another of his crushing hooks.

ART PARKS, batting just under .300 for his first 54 games as a Dodger, put teeth into the Brooklyn offensive when he came up from Montreal. Dodger fans love the way he socks 'em in the clean-up spot when hits mean runs.

Rookie Roundup (Late Edition)

By The AP Feature Service

Some of this year's major league rookies had to wait until mid-season for their chance to make good. Here are a few of those who banged their way into lineups after early-summer seasoning in the minors:

BILL NICHOLSON, a $35,000 Chicago Cub outfielder from Chattanooga, came up in mid-summer with the proper success formula. In his inaugural he hauled in the first ball hit his way with a sensational catch and homered on trip No. 1 to the plate. He's batting around .300.

BOBBY MATTHEW, who put on a Cub uniform August 3 to replace Dick Bartell at shortstop, didn't wait long either. The former Milwaukee star had a perfect day at bat in his first appearance. He hits in the .300 circle.

Mayor Heiselman Secures Athletic Field for Local Baseball Games; Statement

The following statement was issued today by Mayor Heiselman:

In response to a resolution recently adopted by the Central Business Men's Association, at the request of the City Baseball League, asking me to use my efforts to obtain the use of the Athletic Field for baseball games, I called this morning on Mr. Edward Coykendall, administrator of the Estate of Thomas Cornell, owners of the Athletic Field. The owners stated that they had been paying taxes on the Athletic Field for many years and were anxious to sell the property.

I called Mr. Coykendall's attention to the fact that twice before, at the request of the City League, I had obtained permission to continue to use the Athletic Field for both soft and hard ball contests, and that, on behalf of the ball players and baseball fans in the central part of the city, I again petitioned that the use of the field for baseball be allowed for the rest of the season, unless the field is sold. Upon my urgent plea, Mr. Coykendall kindly consented. I am therefore happy to announce that the field may be continued to be used by the City League.

Ray Billows Has Chance to Take National Golf Crown

Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP)—Late today, as the shadows lengthen across the tough terrain of North Shore Country Club, the 43rd National Amateur Golf Crown will descend upon the sunburned brow of either Marvin (Bud) Ward, 25, of Spokane, Wash., or Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 25-year-old "Cinderella Man."

The two youngsters slashed their way to the door of the throne room yesterday in the 36-hole semi-finals, and they met today over the same route to determine which should succeed Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., on the simon-pure throne.

Either would make a worthy ruler, for each has been knocking at fame's door for several years. Bobby Jones, five-time winner of the amateur, and four-time winner of the National Open, scored but five deuces in the four winning opens, or in 16 rounds of 18 holes each, while Billows has equalled that on one hole this week.

A Good Start

Yesterday Billows won the first six holes from Don Schumacher of Dallas, Tex., the first time that has ever happened in the big tourney, and won 6 and 5. Ward had a tougher chore, taking a 2 and 1 verdict from Chicago's Art Doering.

The 170-ward No. 3 hole has proved Billows' "pet." In match play he has scored five deuces on that hole, breaking the hearts of several foes. Bobby Jones, five-time winner of the amateur, and four-time winner of the National Open, scored but five deuces in the four winning opens, or in 16 rounds of 18 holes each, while Billows has equalled that on one hole this week.

Pro basketball fans can set their caps for another season of American League play at the auditorium. Definite arrangements to bring Kate Smith's Celtics back were settled last night at the court house. Barney Sedran was ready to sign on the dotted line any time the local committee said "go." They'll probably give the word today after the promise of the fans to "stick by" at last night's meeting. The two changes discussed and passed up on: A slight increase in prices and a shift from Wednesdays to Tuesdays. That group of four sponsoring the club locally is not looking for profit, and is interested only in keeping the sport alive. Tomorrow the General Electric start their season at Walden. Let's hope the football weather hander outers favors the gridiron with a cooler day than today. However, a little heat may help the boys do a bit of reducing. For the baseball fans: The Colonials play the Texas Rangers at the municipal stadium, and the Little World Series of the City League goes on at the Athletic Field Sunday afternoon.

I'll be Olive Bridge vs. Boiceville on the latter club's diamond tomorrow at 2:30. To the boys who bet on Nova: You should have saved your greens until Christmas. Tony Galento is still rolling for "fat but Louis." There will be married guys on the Southern California football team this season. This is what you call civic cooperation: A huge electric sign on the city hall at Pittsburgh advertising "Galento vs. Nova." And it probably did the business folks a lot of good. Peeking in from another angle on the scrap, Eddie Brietz of the A. P. writes: "Personally this correspondent never saw Nova in action, but for a night he was used from the third round on." Mike Jacobs and his fistic carnival is en route to Detroit for the Louis-Pastor duel Wednesday night.

Managers Dawkins and Jones, the two-loop's guiding lights, are anxiously awaiting the outcome of tomorrow's game. With the Dairy-men one game in the "red," the Jonesmen must cop tomorrow's tussle to stay in the running. With Neff in there, the Dairi-Rich boys are favored to turn the tables on the powerhouse.

Labor Day's sensational 2-1 tussle attracted an overflow crowd of 1,300 fans and tomorrow's turnout is expected to result in another huge assemblage of twilight faithful. Rivalry between the warring clubs is keen and another tightly contested contest is on tap for the City League patrons.

Three umpires will again hold sway on the base-paths with Umpire-in-chief Dick Dulin behind the platter and Bill "Pie" Murphy and Will Scully on the sacks.

First Game Stars

Jimmy Martin, rangy right fielder, Press Knight, Bush, and Jo-Jo Messinger featured for the Indies in the Labor Day clash while Neff, Jimmy Ashdown and Manager Zadany starred for the beaten Dairy-men. Tomorrow's second "Little World Series" classic will get under way at 3 with the pre-game program beginning at 2 o'clock sharp.

Find Stolen Car

George E. Yerry of 133 Highland avenue reported to the police department Friday evening that his 1937 Ford coach, which he had left parked in front of 240 Clinton avenue, had been stolen. This morning Officers Schoonmaker and Urban Healey in one of the radio cars found the car abandoned on South Wall street. The car was driven to the city hall and Mr. Yerry was notified.

Major League Signs 7 Teams

At the meeting of the Central Recreation Major League held last night at the Rec alleys on Railroad avenue, seven teams were ready to sign for competition in the loop for its 28-week schedule. Another club is expected to be procured by the next meeting date, Thursday, September 21, at which time final plans will be completed and officers elected for the season. Entry fees and team rosters, limited to six players, will be accepted. The league will operate on a cash basis. Among the teams represented were the Crystal Beauty Shoppe, last year's Gold Division champions; Jones Dairy, Jack's Garage and Hynes Shoes of the same loop; Frank and Charles Central Recreation champions; John Sang's Sharppers, and a squad entered by Mr. Taylor of Ellenville. A second Ellenville team is expected to complete the membership of eight teams.

State League as the Mohawk Giants drubbed them 8 to 0. In this game, however, the Colonials were minus several of their regular players.

When the Rangers and Colonials met before it was Charlie Lay who delivered the pay-off clout in the ninth inning, a triple giving the locals a 5 to 4 victory. Up until that smack Zoldack and Brown were tied up in a tight pitching duel. In that tussle Kingston was out 9 to 7.

The Rangers will present two players who are property of the big league clubs, Zoldack of the New York Yankees, and Norm Spennrath, property of the St. Louis Cardinals. They will also show the smallest catcher in semi-pro ball, Grant, who is a brother of the House of David player. Grant punched out three of the nine hits in the first meeting.

With the Independent and Jones Dairy clashing at the Athletic Field in the second game of the "Little World Series" Manager Fred Davi will undoubtedly have to make up several outside men to make up the deficit of players. Freddie Pultz of Margaretville and Bill Smith of Cairo will see action in the infield.

Following are the tentative lineups:

Colonials: Husta, 3b; Francello, ss; Hoffman, c; M. Tiano, lf; McCarthy, rf; Pultz, 2b; Smith, 1b; Gallagher, cf; Brown, p.

Little Series Will Be Played Sunday At Home Grounds

Mayor Announces Permission for Use of Diamond After Conference — Indies, Joneses Set for Tilt

The second game in the Little World Series of the City Baseball League will be played Sunday at 3 p. m. on the Athletic Field between the Independents, one up in the race, and Jones Dairy.

After a full week of doubt as to where the contest would be staged, final word on the matter of the diamond was issued by Mayor C. J. Heiselman this morning after a conference with the owners of the field.

Wright Sees 'Penalty'

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—Archibald Wright, leader of a recent strike of upstate dairymen, thinks the 7½ cent August "premium fund" announced by metropolitan milk distributors is a "penalty" to the Dairy Farmers Union he heads. The union chairman said the premium payment should be 16 cents from August 25, the day the strike for a blended price of $2.35 per hundredweight (47 quarts) ended, to August 31 instead of 7½ cents for the entire month. He explained union members withheld milk for nearly two weeks in August and, therefore, would not benefit by the premium for that period.

Armistice Ball on Friday, Nov. 10

As Armistice Day this year falls on a Saturday it was decided Friday evening at a meeting of Kingston Post of the American Legion to hold the annual Armistice Ball on Friday evening, November 10, the night before Armistice Day.

The change in date was made because of the fact that the merchants of the city always plan for a busy day on a Saturday, and keep open later than during the other week days.

The committee in charge of the annual ball are planning to engage a two-piece orchestra to furnish the music, and there will be an exceptionally fine entertainment program consisting of half a dozen vaudeville acts.

Commander John Melville is chairman of the music committee, William T. Roddell of the entertainment; Samuel Peyer of the tickets and Roy Jacob of the decoration committee.

Commander Melville named a committee to investigate a proposed plan to organize a Legion-sponsored junior band after hearing Prof. George Muller speak of the advantages of organizing such a band among the youth of the city. The committee named consists of William Jordan, Edward Luedtke, Joseph Sills, Al Messinger, John Cleveland, Roy Jacob and Walter Dutcher.

Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the sons of veterans interested in the formation of a band are invited to meet in the Legion building to discuss plans.

at the war department, spoke from his hotel room. Grouped about him were Mrs. Lindbergh and a handful of radio technicians.
"We must either keep out of European affairs permanently," he said.
"Our safety does not lie in fighting European wars. It lies in our own internal strength, in the character of the American people and of American institutions. As long as we maintain an army, a navy and an air force worthy of the name, as long as America does not decay within, we need fear no invasion of this country."

Warning against making any mistake about the cost of entering the war, Lindbergh said:
"If we take part successfully we must throw the resources of our entire nation into the conflict. Munitions alone will not be enough. We can not count on victory merely by shipping abroad several thousand airplanes and cannon. We are likely to lose a million men, possibly several million—the best of American youth."

Rosendale Parish To Have Mission

There will be a mission for the members and friends of St. Peter's parish, Rosendale, which includes High Falls and Whiteport, during the week of September 17 to 24, with the Rev. Daniel P. Byrne of the New York Apostolate Fathers conducting the services.

Time of services: Mornings, Masses at 6:20 and 9 o'clock; evenings, 8 o'clock. The children's mission will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, starting at 4 o'clock. There will be bus service furnished from Bloomingville, Creek Locks and Whiteport for the evening devotions.

One of the features will be a question box for Catholics and those not of the faith desiring explanations of Catholicism.

Story in Court Saves Two Fines

August Steigewald, 56, of R. P. D. 1, Kingston, who drives an ice truck, was seized with cramps while the truck was on Clinton avenue Friday afternoon, and his helper, Robert Harvey, 16, of 43 Lucas avenue, took over the wheel and was driving the truck when both were placed under arrest by the police.

This was the story told Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court today when Harvey was arraigned charged with operating a truck without having an operator's license, and Steigewald on a charge of permitting an unlicensed driver to operate the truck.

The judge after hearing the story suspended sentence in both cases.

DIED

BALDINGER—At Zena, N. Y., September 15, 1939, Marie Baldinger, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Addison Short, 100 S. Main St., Zena, N. Y. Funeral services will be held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Addison Short, Zena, N. Y., Sunday afternoon, September 17, 1939, at 2 o'clock, daylight saving time. Interment in Zena cemetery.

KEARNEY—In this city, Saturday, September 16, 1939, Dolly Kearney, wife of the late James Kearney, and mother of Mrs. Raymond Schuler, and Thomas Kearney and sister of Philip Kearney and Ellen Reilly and Mrs. Annie Flood.
Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Schuler, 198 East Chester street, Tuesday morning at 8:30 and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church, where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment will be in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Farmers who still intend to plant winter wheat or barley should, before sowing, treat the seed with new improved Ceresan or some other organic mercury to control smut.

Local Death Record

Mrs. Marie Baldinger died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Addison Short, at Zena Friday after a long illness. Two sons, Fred Baldinger of Pine Hill and Ernest Baldinger of Zena, and two daughters, Mrs. LeRoy Wolven and Mrs. Addison Short of Zena, survive. Funeral services will be held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Short, at Zena, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Zena cemetery.

Ellenville, Sept. 15—Miss Agnes Myers died at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital on Sunday, September 10, after a short illness, at the age of 79 years. Miss Myers, whose home is at Danemora, came to Ellenville in June to visit Mrs. Walter N. Thayer and Mrs. Anna McDonnell. She was born at Danemora January 30, 1860, the daughter of David Myers and his wife, Ellen Myers. There are no immediate survivors. The body was taken to Danemora on Sunday by Wood Myers and his wife, and services were held there on Wednesday with burial at Saranac.

Samuel D. Livingston, 45, of 4 Wilkitt avenue, died Friday night in Mt. Kisco Hospital of injuries suffered in an accident. He took up his residence in Kingston about five years ago, removing here from Middletown. Livingston was employed as a service station attendant at Broadway and Henry street. Surviving are his wife, formerly Armina Livingston; one daughter, Jean; a sister, Mrs. Harry Little; three brothers, Charles, John and William Livingston of Middletown and his mother, Mrs. David Livingston, also of that city. His funeral will be held from the Hasbrouck parlors in Middletown Monday afternoon. Burial will be in Middletown.

Ellenville, Sept. 15—Mrs. Rachel Thall died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Moses Akin, Monday, September 11, at the age of 81 years, after a long illness. She came to Ellenville, N. Y., from home about a year ago. She was born in Slonim, Poland, in 1858, the daughter of Moske Lipa Jancibewitz and his wife, Sara Rivka Shklovitz. She came to the United States in 1928, after the death of Mr. Thall during the World War. Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Miriam T. Akin, wife of Dr. Akin, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. Hinda Grayevsky of Poland, and two sons, George Thall of Cranston, R. I., and Chaim Thall of Poland. Asher Grayevsky of this village is a grandson. Funeral services were held Monday, Rabbi Solomon officiating, and burial was in the Wausau Hebrew cemetery in charge of H. B. Humiston.

Ellenville, Sept. 15—Mrs. Mary Shaffer, widow of Charles Shaffer, died September 9 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Fuller, of Middletown. She was 118 years old. Burial was in the family plot in Hillside Cemetery, Middletown.

Ellenville, Sept. 15—Mrs. Jane M. Carman Little died at the home of her son, Daniel Little, of Cragmoor, Saturday, September 9, after a month's illness, at the age of 98 years. She was born September 21, 1841, at Walker Valley, the daughter of Philip and Cornelia Evans Carman. She was married to Robert Little, who died in 1901. Mrs. Little was a member of the Walker Valley Methodist Church. Surviving are two sons, Daniel Little of Cragmoor and William Little of Walker Valley, one step-daughter, Mrs. John Boyce of Cragmoor, three grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Private funeral services were held at the Pulling Funeral Home Tuesday, September 12, at 1:30 p. m. and at the Walker Valley M. E. Church at 2 o'clock, the Rev. David Achter Church officiating. Burial was in the Walker Valley cemetery.

Mrs. Della Kearney, wife of the late James Kearney, and a resident of this city for 45 years, died early this morning following a brief illness. She was for many years a faithful and devoted member of St. Mary's church, the Rosary Society and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H. Division No. 4. She was a devoted wife and mother and by her kindness she had endeared herself to a very large circle of friends. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Raymond Schuler, Mrs. Sylvester Bujak and a son, Thomas, all of this city; two brothers, Philip of this city and Thomas of New York city; two sisters, Mrs. Annie Flood of Yonkers and Ellen of Ireland; also three stepchildren, James, Joseph and Robert Kearney. The funeral will be held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Schuler, 198 East Chester street, Tuesday morning at 8:30 and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church, where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment will be in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Terrific Battle On Western Front

Atlantic. It was en route to Belfast from Montreal.
The blowing up of a Belgian motorship, the Onopala, on the English Channel raised to 35 the number of vessels lost since the war began September 3. Crew members said the steamer struck something in the water. An explosion followed.

Seven nations have felt the price of sea warfare. Britain has lost 20 ships, France one, Germany nine, not including an unknown number of submarines. Britain says has been destroyed.

Among neutrals, the Netherlands has lost two vessels and Finland, Greece and Belgium one each.

Maritime circles were still uncertain of the source of mysterious signals picked up yesterday by the radio station at Chatham, Mass., and by Mackay radio at New York city.

It was believed, however, the signals, given only the terse message "shelled by submarine, going down," had been flashed by the Fanad Head before it sank.

Britain's belief her destroyers had cleared the sea lanes off South America was reflected in the announcement by the British Fur line that on October 15 it would resume passenger service between New York and the east coast of South America.

The 4,370-ton German freighter, Gonzenheim, disappeared from the "food fleet" anchored off Montevideo and was thought to be attempting to slip through the British blockade with a cargo of wheat.

Numerous other German merchantmen remained anchored in the sanctuary of South American ports.

Truck Driver Claims Ignorance of Collision

Claiming that he did not know that his truck had struck and damaged a car at Shokan, Delbert H. Dickinson, driver of a haulfower truck for James A. Barnhardt of Bovina Center, was let off with a fine of $10 when arraigned before Justice North Friday night on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Dickinson was arrested near the Maverick road intersection by Deputy Sheriff Wesley O'Brien of Glenford, to whom word had been sent following the accident.

According to the officer Dickinson had turned out at Shokan to pass a car which had stopped in front of him, when his truck struck the left rear fender and tailight of a car being driven by Albert J. O'Neil of Richmond Hill, L. I., which was coming from the Lexington, Greene county.

The fender of the O'Neil car was rolled back by the force of the impact between it and the left front fender of the truck.

Aquitania Arrives
New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—The British liner Aquitania, the first armed merchantman of a belligerent nation to reach New York since the European war started, arrived today with 1,625 passengers, 669 of them Americans. Their nerves were ragged after the curfew crossing and many of the Americans expressed resentment over a warning they said Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy had sent them before the ship sailed. The message, said Gilbert Miller, theatrical producer, "scared the gizzards out of us."

Financial and Commercial

Trading Volume Declined Friday

Transactions on the Stock Exchange Friday totaled 1,590,000 shares, smallest volume for a full day this month. There was no great change in prices, which, however, closed slightly higher. Industrials in the Dow-Jones averages were up 32, to 154.03; rails gained .08, to 32.48 and utilities went down .23, to 25.54. Canadian issues continued heavy and copper and chemicals lost ground. There was strength shown in some of the more backward groups.

Commodities eased off and the futures index declined .16 point from Thursday. Wheat at Chicago was 1/4 to 1/2 cent a bushel lower. Cotton futures closed two to nine points lower. Rubber, coffee, cocoa, black pepper declined.

Bonds were mixed as trading declined. Second grade rails made some recovery after business in morning session. There was buying of U. S. Treasuries and most of the list was up 1/4 at the close. Polish 7½ and 6's dropped 1/2 and 12½ points respectively. Finnish, French and Belgium obligations were off two to four points.

Abroad, the London market closed firm, oil issues and the American shares being the only active issues. Amsterdam opened irregular and closing prices mostly were at lowest levels for the day. Domestic shares lost as much as five points. The Paris Bourse closed lower with exception of foreign issues. A decree limiting profits has reduced interest and sluggish markets are anticipated.

Maryland unemployment compensation board, by vote to two to one, denied compensation of 6,000 workers affected by a month-long strike at Celanese Corp. of America. Ruled that the shut-down was caused by a labor dispute and not by a lock-out.

President-Truett Denney said that business of the Erie railroad increased about ten per cent in August as compared with August last year. Declares that railroads of the country can pull out of their depressed condition satisfactorily and without outside help, given improved business conditions in the country.

Goodrich Co. will raise prices on mechanical rubber goods five to 12 per cent on October 1. Raises will apply to more than 30,000 articles in 1,000 distinct lines. Crude rubber has advanced about 30 per cent since beginning of the war.

Industrial Rayon Corp. plants are working at capacity, 24 hours a day seven days a week. The plants are located at Cleveland, Painesville and Covington, W. Va.

Auto production may rise 50 per cent this week, according to Ward's Automotive Reports. With Ford getting back into production the output for the week is estimated at 41,245 units compared with 26,865 last week and 16,000 a year ago.

President Purnell of Youngstown Steel sees higher prices in 1940. Present prices will be maintained for the fourth quarter, but no specifications for shipments at present prices beyond December 31 will be accepted.

Prices decrease up to $15 on three 1940 passenger car models are announced by Dodge. There will be no change in other models. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics price index for farm products is the highest level in 1910-1914 price level. Producers are cautioned not to expect a "runaway" market, as supplies of practically all farm products are more than enough for current and prospective needs.

A sharp upsurge in freight car loadings is reported; idle workers are being recalled to begin repairs of heavy equipment and a number of roads are considering important equipment purchases. The Canadian government will spend $25,000,000 for locomotives and freight cars. Illinois Central will spend $8,000,000 for similar equipment. Atlantic Coast line has ordered 8,500 tons of steel rail from U. S. Steel.

Rise in steel output continues. Pittsburgh will go above 70 per cent of capacity next week. Youngstown is scheduled for 78 per cent, up six points. Birmingham went to 80 per cent this week. Steel scrap advanced another dollar, making a rise of $3 this week.

Nation-wide department store sales last week were four per cent above last year, but in the New York district sales were off 1.1 per cent, while New York city and Brooklyn showed a loss of three per cent from the 1938 week.

Freeman Reader Gives War Views

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll is seeking to evade a military court martial for desertion by declaring he is a draft dodger but not a deserter—because he never served in the army. A writ of habeas corpus granted his attorneys yesterday Tuesday probably will postpone the opening of his court martial Monday. If Federal Judge Alfred C. Cox rules that Bergdoll cannot be tried as a deserter, it will cancel the court martial proceedings and also nullify Bergdoll's previous desertion conviction and unserved five-year prison sentence. The prisoner then could be tried in U. S. district court on charges of evading the draft. A year in jail would be the maximum penalty.

Steele aircraft, copper and specialties were the reciprocal sufferers in the initial tumble. Utilities contested the trend while a number posting modest advances. Rails also were fairly resistant.

Most trading contingents exhibited a disposition to clear the decks for the week-end, especially brokers said, as the European news presented little of an outstanding bullish nature.

The Lindbergh broadcast on keeping out of war served to arouse doubts here and there in boardrooms as to whether the proposed arms embargo repeal would get through the coming special session of congress without a real battle.

In addition financial observers found nothing particularly cheering in the Far Eastern peace pact between Russia and Japan, and murmurs from Berlin of a possible new peace attempt by Mussolini served to arouse the thought that gains based on long drawn-out European hostilities might be nebulous at best.

Good business signs at home were plentiful. Based on word from the main steel producing centers, next week's mill operations were expected to jump in the neighborhood of 8 to 10 points as 75 to 80 per cent of capacity, a steep peak since the fall of 1937.

Steel scrap at Pittsburgh was boosted $1 a ton after three previous 50-cent hikes this week. Transfers approximated 900,000 shares.
